Senators Told Vote On Naval Treaty Must Be Speedily Taken

Administration Will Force Early Action On Treaty

"Cloture" Rule Will Be Used Unless Vote Is Speeded By Opponents

NOTICE IS SERVED BY SENATOR WATSON

Adjournment Of Senate Latter Part Of Next Week Is Goal Sought

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Administration forces decided today to apply the screws on opponents of the London Naval Treaty in an effort to compel ratification within another week.

After a conference with President Hoover at the White House Senator Watson (R) of Indiana, the majority leader, announced that unless the opponents of the treaty agree to vote next Tuesday, or agree to drastically limit debate to ten minutes for each Senator on each reservation, the majority will apply cloture.

Have Necessary Votes

"We have the votes to apply cloture," said Watson, "and we will apply it unless an agreement is reached."

The application of cloture, rarely attempted in the senate, would restrict each Senator to an hour's debate, which would be tantamount to about a dozen hours debate as the advocates of the treaty have shown no disposition to debate it. The debating has been by the opposition.

Adjournment by the latter part of next week is the administration goal.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Riding a motorcycle in dare-devil fashion may be perfectly proper in its place, but Pa Newc doesn't believe Highland avenue or any other city street should be used. A cyclist on Highland avenue last night performed on his machine by standing up, all the while stretching his arms recklessly about to balance himself as he sped along.

The Shenango river rose two-tenths of a foot over night, the result no doubt of rains above Sharon. Must have rained farther up for the water here wasn't muddy.

There will probably not be a lot of gloom in the army of school children here by the announcement that the board has decided not to open school for the fall term until September 8. On account of Labor Day coming on the first day of September, the change was made, school opening on the second week of the month.

Pa Newc hopes that this juvenile tree sitting epidemic does not strike New Castle. Boys in several cities are attempting to make records a la flagpole sitting champions by roosting in trees. There is nothing to be gained by any such dmonstrations.

Pa Newc chanced to meet an old timer of this city yesterday and during the conversation he mentioned that one of the early settlers here bought several hundred acreas of land in what is now the residential section of the North hill for a price that was about $2.50 per acre.

A unique and suggestive sign on a mail-box of a local residence. It says, "Post No Bills." (!!!)

BODY OF LONG LOST FLIER FOUND IN UTAH

(International News Service)

CEDAR CITY, Utah, July 17—The final and tragic chapter in a mystery of the skies was written today when the body of Maurice Graham, western Air Mail Express airmail pilot, was brought here for shipment to Los Angeles.

Graham's body, badly decomposed, was found in a lonely spot 23 miles west of here late yesterday. It was more than six miles from the spot at which his wrecked plane was found several weeks ago.

No notes were discovered to indicate how Graham must have suffered from exposure after his ship crashed in the severest blizzard of the winter, late January 10.

Authorities believe the pilot lived about five days after the smashup and during the period he wandered in semi-conscious condition through the desolate mountain country of southern Utah.

It could not be determined whether Graham was injured in the crash.

Fliers In Crash Will Try Again

Not Daunted By Failure Of Non-Stop Flight To Buenos Aires

(International News Service)

MONROE, Ga., July 17.—Undaunted by the failure of their projected non-stop flight to Buenos Aires, the three men crew of the monoplane K of New Haven today prepared to leave the wreckage of their plane and return to New York where they will lay plans for a second attempt.

The flyers, Randy Enslow, chief pilot; James Garrigan and Garland Peed, spent last night at a hotel here, resting from their flight against fog and bad weather which ended when their plane crashed near Bostwick and the trio leaped to safety in parachutes. The plane's fuel had been used up in fighting stormy weather during Tuesday night.

The plane was smashed so badly that salvaging will be impossible.

Pittsburgh's Officialdom Present As Raid Is Made —Interviews Are Refused

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Practically the single, only and all-encompassing topic of conversation in Pittsburgh today was the over-night famous "Amen Club raid".

As two alleged bartenders and a ticket seller at the club picnic, raided by Federal prohibition agents yesterday, awaited a hearing before the United States Commissioner here, Pittsburgh's officialdom buzzed, speculated and wondered over the most spectacular raid in prohibition enforcement history locally.

Mingle Freely

For, when the raid took place—at the height of gay festivities—city, county, and borough officials; politicians, and reputed members of the racketeering gentry were reported to be mingling freely.

Fred Drum and Harry Dippel, who were arrested on a charge of dispensing beer—which was seized—and the ticket seller, known only as "Price" were released following the raid with orders to appear in Federal court for a hearing today. The raiders, meanwhile, withdrew triumph-

Twenty Five Hundred From E. And A. Division At Cascade Park

PROGRAM PROVIDES ENJOYABLE DAY

Twenty five hundred or more employes of the Pennsylvania railroad from points in Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio, together with their families and friends, were at Cascade Park Wednesday afternoon participating in the annual outing of Erie and Ashtabula division workers.

When the last event of the busy day was over, General Chairman L. C Gleason with his competent staff of committeemen sought a deserving rest while the hundreds who shared in the fun and festivities decided unanimously that the outing was the best ever, bar none.

Chairman William Glasser of the sports committee kept the picnickers entertained throughout the afternoon with a lengthy program of races and comical novelty events. Starting promptly at 1 o'clock the sporting events continued until the mushball game between the single and married men at 4 o'clock.

For the children there were free amusements, while for those who didn't choose to watch the races there was free dancing in the beautiful pavilion from 2 until 5. No one was forgotten for even the oldest railroad vets found oldtimers with whom to swap dusty stories of experiences

Eugene C. Grace Scheduled Today As "Suit" Witness

Eugene C. Grace, President Of Bethlehem Steel Will Be Court Witness Today

FRANK PURNELL ENDS TESTIMONY

By BURL A. ELY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 17.—Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel corporation, today was scheduled to go under fire of cross-examination by anti-merger attorney in the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company-Bethlehem Steel merger suit being tried in Mahoning county common pleas court here.

Questioning of the eastern steel executive was expected to center about details of Bethlehem's property values the negotiations and basis of the merger contract, and Bethlehem's activities in the purchase of Sheet & Tube stock during the battle of proxies which was waged to put across the consolidation.

Salary as Issue.

The salary of Grace as president of Bethlehem was also expected to become an issue, since anti-merger forces charge that huge salaries paid Bethlehem officials were concealed from Sheet & Tube stockholders at the time of the merger ratification.

Grace follows Frank Purnell, president of the Sheet & Tube, to the witness stand. Three points were brought out in the testimony of Purnell yesterday as he ended two full court days on the witness stand.

Under cross-examination of Harry J. Crawford, chief of the anti-merger legal staff, Purnell said he "thought there might be from $50,000,000 to $70,000,000 excess property account that might be of no value."

Purnell also admitted that despite his declaration that the merger with

The 19-year-old flyer died in a hospital here late yesterday from a fractured skull received when his plane crashed in the nearby mountains Monday in a heavy fog.

Young Goldsborough's career ended on his birthday and three years after his father, Brice Goldsborough, was lost with the plane "Dawn" which disappeared in a fog on an attempted flight across the Atlantic.

Goldsborough became known to aviation last year when after attending a flying school he flew his plane, American Boy, from New York to Los Angeles, establishing new junior records for crossing the continent from East To West and West to East.

Two of the bodies have been recovered and removed to the morgue of J. G. Reimer, Livermore deputy coroner.

Everybody to his sport I say, no matter what it be, let those who like to fat or sew, do that, it's right with me. And those who like to hike or swim, or ride a chain drive bike, go right ahead, enjoy themselves, if that is what they like. But there are some, I know them well, who have a favorite wish, and that is just to sit for weeks and fish, and fish, and fish. Now fishing never did appe to me I must confess, but there are thrills to be enjoyed, and pleasure there I guess. And so the lad who likes to fish, should buy some lines and hooks, and get himself a pipe or two, and likewise several boo's. And hie him to some mossy bank, where from his cares he's free, if that's his sport, I wish him well, the weather's ninety three.

Bethlehem was but a climax in the struggle to keep abreast of steel industry competition, Sheet & Tube has not missed a single dividend since 1917 and has made several extensions during that period.

Purnell revealed further that Hoyt Moore, counsel for Bethlehem, and W. B. May of Price, Waterhouse & Co., New York accountants, who were employed in the merger negotiations selected the "three impartial auditing firms" to check over the Price, Waterhouse merger figures following charges of Cyrus S. Eaton, merger opponent, that they contained errors.

Regarding this latter company, Judge David G. Jenkins, before whom the case is being tried, sought to learn who paid the "three impartial auditing firms." Both Purnell and Newton D. Baker, chief of the pro-merger counsel, declared that these firms were regarded as joint employes of both Bethlehem and Sheet & Tube. No bill has been submitted for the services, the court was informed. Upon the request of Judge Jenkins, Baker said he would make inquiry as to who paid the three firms.

Asked by Judge Jenkins if the three auditing firms had been selected for the protection of Sheet & Tube stockholders, Purnell said he had advised their retention.

Purnell declared that a list of six auditing firms was submitted to Eaton with a request that he name any three to examine the Price, Waterhouse figures which he claimed were in error Eaton declined the offer, Purnell said, and the matter was left to the discretion of May & Moore.

Auto Inspection Dates Are Fixed

State Order All Autos Inspected Between Sept. 15 And October 31

Inspection of motor vehicles in the state has been set at an earlier period this year than in the past two years. Governor John S. Fisher has just set the date for the annual inspection for 1930 in the period between September 15 to October 31.

First started as a voluntary measure, the inspection of cars is now compulsory, being made a part of the motor code in the Sessions of 1929. By this means many car owners are informed of deficiencies they did not suspect and accidents are thus cut down.

While no announcement as to the kind of sticker has been made it is probable that the same kind of circular inspection certificate will be pasted upon the right side of the windshield following the inspection. After October 31 all cars not inspected will likely be subject to apprehension by the state highway patrol.

Garage men who acted as official inspection stations last year have not yet been notified of the new dates, but will likely get word within the near future.

assistant engineer in charge of the Camp Mitchell unit.

Wheeler said there were between 24 and 30 men in the tunnel, which is 2,000 feet long and connected with the surface by an 800-foot shaft at the center.

Gas Ignited

Natural gas collecting in the end of the eastern tunnel, according to Wheeler, was ignited in an undetermined manner.

The terrific blast instantly killed all the crew in the eastern unit, Wheeler said.

Preliminary investigations showed conclusively that the men were killed by the concussion and not burned to death.

So great was the force of the blast that workmen at the other end of the tunnel, 2,000 feet away, were knocked from their feet and their lanterns extinguished.

Under the leadership of their shift boss they fought through the choking gas fumes and foul air to the central shaft and were lifted to safety by the elevator hoist.

Feared Earthquake

The detonation shook the countryside so that ranchers nearby thought an earthquake had occurred.

Immediately following the explosion emergency rescue crews of the Hetch Hetchy project were rushed to the tunnel and a picked squad of five men, equipped with gas masks, was lowered into the tunnel.

The return trip brought up the 14 workmen who had been in the western end of the tunnel at the time of the explosion.

According to Wheeler, all the bodies were found in the end of the eastern tunnel.

Some of the bodies were hurled far down the tunnel.

Officials of the United States Bureau of Mines, the state industrial accident commission and the Hetch Hetchy project were notified and investigators sent to the tunnel.

of an administration threat to impose "gag rule" on the Senate. Senator Hiram W. Johnson (R) of California, leader of the opposition to the London naval treaty, today blocked an agreement for a vote on the pact next week.

Johnson dramatically announced he would "ask no quarter" from the treaty's friends and declared he would continue fighting the pact indefinitely. The Californian inspired the treaty foes by challenging the administration to impose cloture, which would gag the Senate by limiting each senator to single hour's debate.

Senator James E. Watson (R) of Indiana, the administration floor leader, immediately began circulating a petition asking cloture. Under the rules the petition will force a vote on adoption of cloture within 48 hours after its presentation. The gag rule requires a two-thirds vote before it can be imposed.

The next great stunt of the season will consist in pushing six-inch guns down the throat of the Senate.

Youre the JUDGE

A CONSTABLE of a town cast a suspicious eye upon a transient there, and at last approached him and began a series of questionings.

Soon the constable also felt suspicious that the stranger carried a revolver in his hip pocket, and so by a deft clinch he managed to take hold of the transcient so that he could not resist, and the constable took possession of the revolver.

While the constable held the revolver in his hand the transcient demanded that it be returned to him. When the constable refused, the transient came to grips with him for its possession.

In the scuffle the transient got hold of the revolver in the hand of the constable and so inverted it that it pointed at the constable. He then pulled the trigger and the constable fell dead.

The transient was apprehended and soon put on trial. At the trial he argued that he shot to protect his property.

decree was signed by the president after an hour's session with the cabinet, which approved the invoking of the article as the only means of solving Germany's financial crisis. The action followed a non-confidence vote in the Reichstag and the refusal of the lower house to pass the financial laws.

As the Reichstag assembled today, there was a strong possibility that it would find itself dissolved before night. It all depends upon the attitude of the Nationalists with regard to a motion which the Socialists intend to introduce immediately after Chancellor Heinrich Bruening has presented the president's decree to the legislature. The motion, according to Dr. Rudolph Breitscheid, leader of the Socialists, will be that the Reichstag should reject the decree, it was felt the cabinet would dissolve parliament unless it received assurances such a motion will be voted down.

when they rode the engines, or perhaps the caboose, passenger train, or served the railroad in some other capacity.

Vets Are Present

Honors for being the oldest pensioneers in attendance, as far as could be determined, went to S. M. Menoer, of North Lima, Ohio, now in his 88th year. John Keyes, of Rochester, 78 years of age, was believed to be the second oldest honor roll man at the picnic. Picnic officials, however, took no registration of the vets, but no older veterans could be found in a tour of the grounds.

Picnic dinner had been enjoyed by the throng at noon, arrangements being made so that plenty of punch and coffee and cream was ready at the call of the guests. Many remained for supper in the grove

Shortly at 6 o'clock, eastern standard time, the picnic hosts left the park aboard the special street cars that earlier in the day had conveyed them from the depot to the park. More than 10 cars were needed to carry the huge throng of 450 persons. Arriving at the depot they boarded their special train which left for Ashtabula and intermediate points at 7 o'clock. The train had brought them to the city earlier in the day.

Railroad officials estimated more than a thousand came on the special and the special coaches attached to regular Erie trains. At least 1,500 or more from the local vicinity including hundreds of Youngstown employes, drove their own automobiles to the park.

Children of the Margaret Henry home were present as guests of the division and ample provision for their entertainment was made. They enjoyed the free rides along with the Pennsy children and participated in the different events of the day.

Ball Game Features

Featuring the sports program was the game of mushball between the married men and supposedly single players—for some were not. S. E. "Lefty" Park's married boys came through to win by a score of 8 to 1. E. M. Fischer, assistant road foreman of engines, captained the single men. E. A. Fenton, supervising agent filled the role of umpire.

Following the married men's victory came a tournament of Tom Thumb golf between Road Foreman of Engines T. L. Bailey and Trainmaster F. J. Perry. The trainmaster won the match although Mr. Bailey, or some one, had passed the word around that he had previously made the course in par.

PITTSBURGH HUMS OVER "AMEN RAID" NOTABLES ATTEND

antly from the scene, bearing with them six barrels of alleged beer, four of them full and two "on tap," six empty barrels and two sets of cooling apparatus.

Aside from the actual fact of the raid, however—and it came as a distinct surprise and more or less of a shock—were the officials and politicians reported to have been present when the agents appeared under the personal supervision of Deputy Prohibition Administrator Harold D. Wilson.

Among the more prominent guests reported present at the picnic were District Attorney Andrew T. Park; John S. Herron, president of council and several members of the council and burgesses and township officials from various sections of Allegheny county.

Saw No Gambling

"I only just dropped in to pay my respects to club members and friends," declared the district attorney. "I saw nothing out of the way. I saw no gambling. I had left before the raid."

Council President Herron said he had just arrived when the Federal officers came on the scene while State Senator Frank J. Harris also reported to have been present, could not be reached for his comment during the night. Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, who returned to his desk only yesterday after a European trip, declared he did not know there had been a raid.

Police Magistrate John J. Sweeney, Councilman Clifford B. Connelley and Burgess J. C. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, all of whom were reported present at the picnic, registered objections to interviews.

Burgess Al. G. Hagmaier, of Aspinwall, declared he arrived at the picnic just a short time before the arrival of the raiding officers. He, too, declared he saw nothing "out of the way."

Burgess John F. Cavanaugh, of Homestead, spoke proudly of being present at the picnic and of having his picture taken.

STAR LORE

SEEING THE EARTH ROTATE

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

Both at Peabody Museum, Yale university and at National Academy of Sciences, Washington, D. C., may be seen an instrument invented by Foucault in 1851. Foucault suspended a heavy iron ball from the dome of the Pantheon, Paris, by a wire 200 feet long; constructed a circular rail around it; poured a ridge of sand top of the rail so that every time the pendulum swung a projecting pin beneath the ball cut the sand. It was found that while the pendulum continued to swing in exact plane north and south, the earth turned from west to east under it, causing the iron pin to cut fresh grooves in sand to westward.

County Loses Money On Liquor Car Sale

Costs And Storage Amounted To $66.25 And Sheriff Sells Car For $15

Sale of automobiles seized in the transportation of liquor does not always prove a profitable investment to the county. This was illustrated this morning when Sheriff Frank Johnston sold an automobile as the property of James Dunlap to David Tobin for $15.

This automobile, whose owner is said to have lived in Cleveland, was seized about seven months ago and has been stored in the Rick garage. The storage charges on the car car amounted to $50 and the total costs, including the storage, amounted to $66.25. The county must pay the difference between the total costs and the sale price or $51.25.

Before an automobile can be sold the district attorney must present a petition to court and the sale must be advertised. This takes time. Meanwhile storage for the car must be paid.

In some cases, where the car is a reasonably good one, the county comes out ahead, but in cases such as the sale of the Dunlap car, it is a losing proposition.

The car must be sold to the highest bidder, and bidders are generally scarce.

County Assessors To Be Equipped With City Maps

Work Will Be Started In Larger Wards Of The City Within A Few Days

County commissioners have secured a full set of city maps for the use of county assessor in making the triennial assessment. So far as known this is the first time that assessors have been equipped with maps. It will greatly facilitate the work, as the maps show at a glance, who is the owner of each piece of real estate.

In looking up the law as to when county assessors enter upon their duties, county commissioner's clerk, Will A. Eakin, has found that the law reads that work is to be started on or before September 1st. In some of the larger wards of the city assessors can therefore start at once.

Heretofore when assessors waited until the first of September they found the time inadequate to complete the work within the time when it was supposed to be finished. The result has been that the commissioners have been delayed in making up the tax books.

If assessors in the large wards start at once, it is believed that the work can be completed on time.

The assessment to be made is what is known as the tri-ennial assessment. Upon the valuations set property owners must pay taxes for the next three years, as no changes can be made within that time, unless allowed by the court of appeals.

Lutheran Missions Secretary Addresses Conneaut Convention

Favors Youth Of Today Who Opposes Church Councilman With Long Faces

(International News Service)

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa. July 17—Dr. Paul W. Koller of Baltimore, Md., executive secretary of the Lutheran Board of Foreign Missions, was on record today in favor of modern youth as opposed to the church councilman "who goes about with a long face, always on the alert to call down the boys."

"That method," Dr. Koller told pastors and laymen of the Pittsburgh Lutheran synod in convention here" is as antiquated as the use of a pole with a deer's hoof on one end and a deer's tail on the other. This was the old-time weapon of the church councilman. With the deer's tail he aroused members of the gentler sex who nodded in meeting, with the hoof he booted boys who needed correction."

Other questions discussed by Dr. Koller were: "Can a church council hire and fire the preacher whenever it likes?" "Oough there to be a book of etiquette for church councils?" and "Should women sit in the council?"

Another speaker at the convention was the Rev. Fred W. Heines, who has just returned from Japan. The Rev. C. A. Dennig presided at the session.

Entertains for Son

Mrs. George Yost, Park avenue, entertained a group of little folks Wednesday afternoon in honor of her son Bobby, the occasion being his third birthday. The afternoon hours were spent with various kinds of games and amusements and the little honor guest was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

Closing the afternoon the little folks were seated in the dining room at a large table centered with a birthday cake, on which glowed three pink candles, pink carnations in tall vases forming the end pieces and other appointments were carried out in pink and white.

Mrs. Yost was assisted in serving by Helen Reynolds and the guests included Dorothy McCreary, Gene McGiven, Billy Davis, Catherine Davis, Richard Yost, Mrs. M. Davis and the honor guest.

Silver Craft Club

The lawn at the home of Mrs. J. T. Dickson, Lathrop street, formed a pretty setting for the tureen dinner of the Silver Craft club, which the members had Tuesday evening. The table under the trees, with bowls of garden flowers in bright shades and matching appointments formed a lovely background for the bountiful dinne. of delicious viands.

Following the dinner the guests whiled away the hours with 500, music and various games, with the gift to the hostess being featured, her wedding anniversary being the occassion of remembrance.

Mrs. I. S. Rudolph, 726 Croton avenue, will entertain the club July 29.

Wednesday Quilting Club

Members of the Wednesday Quilting club enjoyed a tureen dinner Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Lil Blaine, Walnut street, who with the assistance of her daughter, Goldie, served a delicious menu, at a table prettily appointed in garden flowers.

The afternoon hours were spent at fancy work and in general conversation.

Mrs. Gladys Kenehan will entertain the members August 20 at her summer cottage at Wilmington Junction, August 20.

Relative Is Safe After Earthquake

Mrs. F. W. Wehr, Adams street, has received word from the Baptist mission board of New York City that all their missionaries at Assam are safe. Assam was visited about two weeks ago by an earthquake, but little damage was done to the buildings.

Miss Elizabeth Hay, a sister of Mrs. Wehr, who was formerly a resident of this city, has been a missionary in the Assan district for the past 14 years.

JULY STUNT NIGHT AT FIELD CLUB

Members of the New Castle Field club are awaiting with rather unusual interest the program this evening when the July Stunt Night will be held with Mrs. Grace Phillips Johnson and her son Tom in charge.

Ordinarily the program for such an event is announced beforehand but the events of tonight have been held as a surprise. Whether they will take the form of operatic singing or illustrated lessons on how to ride a goat is as much a secret as the private papers of the London naval conference.

This much is known however, that the program has taken some time to prepare and will be well worth the seeing tonight. Following the program there will be an orchestra and informal dancing.

Entertains at Cottage

Mrs. F. R. Richards of Erie avenue, delightfully entertained members of the Elite Club at her cottage at Lakewood Beach Wednesday with a one o'clock tureen luncheon. The table was set under the trees and centered with garden flowers. Mrs. James Shaffer and Mrs. John Waggoner were special guests.

Celeste Girls

The Celeste Girls were delightfully entertained Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Julia Ford, Cherry street, when the evening was spent at cards and upon conclusion a lovely prize for high score was presented Mrs. Mary O'Laughlin while the consolation was given to Mary Kennedy.

Mrs. Margaret McCane of Cleveland was an out of town guest. Closing the evening a dainty lunch was served by the hostess, a color scheme of yellow and white being cleverly carried out in the table appointments and menu.

BOOSTING LETTER POSTAGE

PRIOR to 1916 the post office department had a small but regular deficit from year to year. This deficit dated back to the middle of the last century, when rapid expansion of the postal service cost the government as much as twice its postal receipts. In 1860, receipts were about $8,000,000 and expenditures were $19,000,000. These figures appear insignificant when compared with an estimated deficit of $60,000,000 for this year.

While the public is accustomed to regard the postal deficit without alarm and will so regard the prospective shortage, which is $10,000,000 in excess of the 1929 deficit, the post office department views it with misgivings and considers ways and means of wiping it out.

Contributing to the disparity between the cost and price of mail service are the costly air-mail service, the franking privilege of congressmen and expansion of the rural mail service. These losses, however, are not troubling the department. It finds that first-class mail rates are too low to place the service on a self-supporting basis, and proposes a basic rate of two and one-half cents per ounce instead of the present two cents.

What the public reaction to the addition of a half cent to the cost of mailing its personal letters would be cannot be foreseen. There was no protest against the high war rates but a two-cent rate for postcards nearly abolished that medium of communication.

It has always been the policy of the post office department to maintain the rates at a point where they would encourage universal communication. Has it taken that into consideration in advocating a higher rate now?

VIEWS OF A CONSERVATIVE OPTIMIST

Arthur Reynolds, the head of an important financial institution in Chicago, who describes himself as "a conservative optimist," declares that business conditions in this country are not nearly as bad as many people profess and as many other fear.

In spite of midsummer dullness, there is an improvement in public psychology and a feeling that we shall emerge from the fog of depression sooner than we expect. "It would surprise many," says this authority, "to know how good business is at present. Sixty-eight per cent of our customers report that their business is satisfactory. Only about thirty-two per cent complain of poor business. In many cases, where the volume of transactions has fallen off, profits have held up fairly well because of better business methods."

Cheerfulness of this kind will eventually help the entire situation. There are certain factors which must not be ignored. One of them is the carefully planned programmes of the city, state and national governments. They have authorized the expenditure of many hundreds of millions of dollars. The effect of this is not yet apparent for the simple reason that it takes months to arrange the preliminaries for such improvements. First the expenditures have to be authorized, then bids have to be invited and contracts awarded, and finally plans for the work have to be agreed upon. This requires time. There is a natural impatience, but the fruits of this wise policy should be apparent in the early fall. In the meantime it would be a good thing if we had more "conservative optimists" of the type of the Chicago man.

EDUCATION AND HEALTH

In a joint report the American Medical Association and the National Educational Association attribute the success of the war on diphtheria and typhoid to a better understanding of the causes and improved methods of control of those once dread diseases.

Deaths from these diseases have declined 95 per cent since the beginning of the century and there has been a corresponding decrease in number of cases. Where once they were common in epidemic form and deaths in alarming numbers were inevitable in every community every year, they are now rare.

Medical science and the public health service discovered and pointed the way and the co-operation of an enlightened public exceeded expectations based on every precedent. Ignorance, superstitious fears, misunderstanding and opposition based on falsehood have ever been obstructions to the free movement of public health programs, and the history of vaccination and other immunization injections is no exception to that rule.

Without education of children and their parents through the schools and public health agencies it is doubtful if diphtheria and typhoid would now be among the conquered diseases. Not even the compulsory vaccination laws could have coped with the situation without the aid of public education.

Just Folks

UNPRAISED MERIT

An eager lad worked side by side
With one who took in work no pride.
And since they labored by the day
And drew each week the self-same pay,
The youngster, missing words of praise,
Wondered if honest effort pays.

He noticed, being bright of eye,
His careless brother's task go by.
Yet what seemed strange, he never heard
A bitter or complaining word
And wondered: "Can it be the same?
I get no praise; he gets no blame.

"Is merit worth its patient cost?
Is tedious, honest effort lost?
I give my best; he doesn't try.
Yet gets the same reward as I."
And so one night the eager lad
Discussed the question with his dad.

"My boy," said he, "no praise nor blame
Of good and bad can make the same.
In self-respect high effort pays,
Good work without one word of praise
Is better than performance faint
Which may be passed without complaint."

Sentence Sermons

By Rev. Roy D. Smith, D. D.

SO MANY PRAYERS—

Are an effort to save work.
Are an effort to lay the responsibility on God.
Are a request for something rather than an effort to be something.
Are most effective when translated into individual effort.
Are meaningless to God because they are meaningless to us.
Are pleas for favors when they should be pleas for wisdom.
Ahe for easy ways when they should be for a courageous spirit.

The Baby Will Fly.
Sarnoff Sees Ahead.
Gangs Move On New York.
No Bets Against Jones.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1930, King Features Syn., Inc.)

The interesting Lindbergh baby, to spend the hot weather at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morrow in Maine, will fly there with his father and mother, according to report.

A flying baby only a few weeks old seems strange to us. Ten years hence babies in an airplane will be no more exciting than babies in street cars or railroad trains.

The Lindbergh baby will find it hard to realize that human beings once crawled over the surface of the earth or water, at a "snail's pace" at 60 miles an hour.

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, like all successful men, has imagination as well as executive capacity. He says:

"Television, providing a theater for every home although the stage may be only a cabinet, and a curtain the screen, is, I believe, the distinct promise of the new era of electrical entertainment."

Mr. Sarnoff sees in the latest gift of science to the human race the promise of "a new culture." Ten million homes in the United States now "draw nightly upon the programs of the air for the family entertainment."

Mr. Sarnoff, young and remarkably able, believes that this generation will see the greatest actors, orators, clergymen and singers moving and hear their voices in their homes. That is modern magic.

Racketeers, gunmen, and other experts, driven out of Chicago by police energy, are alleged to be gathering in the bigger, richer city. Robberies of various kinds, from banks to delicatessen stores, a bomb explosion in the Fifth avenue district, business and trade union rackets of all kinds testify to the energy with which the alleged Chicago invaders do their work.

Police say their difficulties are increased by the unwillingness of citizens to tell what they know. Business men submit to racketeering to avoid bombing.

Bobby Jones has taught an anti-gambling lesson to Lloyds, the great British insurance company. At the beginning of this golf season Lloyds, which takes all kinds of wagers, bet 50 to 1 that Bobby Jones would not win the four great championships in succession. Now he has won three of them, and those that bet against him, seeking to insure themselves against loss, requests Lloyds to bet that Jones will not win his fourth match.

Lloyds says:

"No. It will cost you one thousand pounds to get a thousand pounds insurance against Jones' victory."

Which means that victory is considered certain.

Waterways Measure Hailed As Congress Achievement

Promise Of Better Freight Rates, Connecting Of Inland Cities With Sea And Increased Employment Found In Passage Of Rivers And Harbors Bill

Much commendation is expressed for the passage of the current Rivers and Harbors Bill, carrying $145,000,000 for 170 projects in waterway improvement. It is held to be a major achievement of the session of Congress, and satisfaction is felt that cities of the inland section are to be provided with means of access to the sea. Better freight rates and employment are held to be important results. Some areas feel that they have not been properly favored, however, and there is a touch of skepticism as to results.

"In its present phase, the project is a promising economic experiment," says the CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR, with the conclusion: "On the whole, the waterways system should knit more closely the greatest free-trade area in the world—namely, the United States. With our foreign trade menaced by uncertainties, it is all the more necessary that the various sections of the country have cheap access to each other's products." The LONG BEACH PRESS-TELEGRAM observes that "the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio valleys have felt that they have been deprived of the full benefits of the Panama Canal," and that "the plans that now take form are especially designed to meet the situation."

"The Illinois waterway may not be completed by 1933, as Governor Emmerson hopes, but it will be completed—no doubt about that," declares the ROCK ISLAND ARGUS. "The great Mississippi basin is to have sea connections. More favorable freight rates are bound to come. It will take time, yes, but the national waterway program is at last taking definite shape. For that let us be thankful."

"The interrelation of water conservation, personal and property safety, consequent stabilization of values, and the meshing of annual crop transportation facilities into the maximum of speed with the minimum of expense will constitute the greatest economic equation of the ages," avers the FORT WORTH RECORD-TELEGRAM, describing the project as one which has been "a veritable political will o' the wisp for nearly a half-century," and "one of the really constructive pieces of legislation turned out by the Congress in the 1900's."

"As an engineer and a business man," remarks the LOUISVILLE TIMES, "President Hoover looks at inland waterways as every State looks at its possessed or prospectiv highways. He wants the gaps improved, just as Kentuckians want the gaps in their primary road system improved. His attitude toward the projected outlay is highly praiseworthy, and highly constructive." The HARTFORD COURANT look upon the matter as "fulfillment of a campaign pledge to improve and consolidate the country's inland waterway system," as "giving impetus to our recently begun return to economic normality" and as promising "12,000 miles of waterways."

"There seems to be no question," thinks the CHATTANOOGA TIMES, "that it will have a profound effect upon the country, especially that part of it lying between the Allegheny and the Rocky Mountain ranges." The Times adds: "The work of developing these waterways will give employment to thousands of men at a time when unemployment is a serious problem. It will also stimulate other lines of endeavor, in that it will create demands for machinery and supplies. Boat and barge building will be spurred."

The CLEVELAND NEWS also advises: "Quick action is the important requirement so far as concerns relief of unemployment. Work for thousands of additional men might be extremely desirable this summer and not particularly needed next summer. Fortunately, speed should be possible in this connection. Plans for dredging and otherwise improving rivers and harbors are usually prepared by army engineers long in advance of the appropriations. If the President can speed up departmental procedure in letting contracts and attending to other details, the employment benefit should not be long delayed."

"A powerful antidote to insularity" is seen by the SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS, which believes that "the system will make virtual seaports of such places as Minneapolis, Sioux City, Chicago, and Chattanooga," and will "stimulate the landlocked people's interest in the merchant marine, the Navy, world trade and diplomacy." The EVANSVILLE COURIER feels that "it should effect, in time, a large saving on bulk freight, extend and distribute industrial development and help to decentralize congested centers of population."

"The President's hope for a valuable system of inland waterways is not beyond attainment," concedes the OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES, adding that "the immediate benefit of the new measure is that it will place a large number of men at work at a time when many are jobless." The BIRMINGHAM NEWS sees "a substantial stride toward improving the transportation facilities of North America," and predicts that "as the years pass, billions will go into the dredging and deepening of waterways, not only, but into the cutting of canals for the furtherance and expediting of the nation's commerce."

The NEW YORK EVENING POST offers the judgment: "Many of these projects are largely founded upon faith that improved navigation will bring a revival of shipping on rivers and channels whose traffic almost vanished in the great era of railroad expansion. A renaissance of river shipping has come in that part of the Mississippi system where improvements have already been made, but time alone will justify some of the great outlays made by the Government."

"Commerce will be able to move to the sea at New Orleans through continuous, adequate river channels," says the NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PICAYUNE, observing that "the government now stands committed to the plan in its entirety." The ERIE DISPATCH-HERALD lauds the project as a whole, and especially approves provision for the Delaware River and for western Pennsylvania. The LITTLE ROCK ARKANSAS GAZETTE calls it "the response of Congress to one of the greatest needs of the nation," while demanding future attention to the Arkansas River. The SALT LAKE DESERET NEWS calls it "a majestic scheme," while holding that "the West has other water-improvement programs in whose efficacy it firmly believes."

"During the session," states the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, "Congress was criticized for many sins of omission and for much woeful waste of time and energy. Yet it has to its credit constructive service of great value. Its waterway legislation alone is enough to make the session memorable in a positive and progressive sense. The preposterous limitation of water flow attached by congress to the Illinois link of the lakes-to-gulf waterway must be eliminated at an early day. Until it is eliminated the legislation so deservedly lauded by Mr. Hoover will be marred by a grave and wanton blunder."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

WE LIVE LONGER

A larger percentage of people more than fifty years of age and a smaller percentage of those under twenty years probably will be shown by the 1930 census figures when completed, according to a statement by the Director of the Bureau of the Census, William M. Steuart. This is based on figures in the past and the continued decline in the birth rate of this country, he said.

In 1860 the census showed that only nine percent of the people of the United States were more than fifty years old, and in 1920 this group formed sixteen per cent of the total population, it was stated. The advancement that has been made in medical science no doubt has been a large factor in this trend toward longevity, it was explained.

More than fifty per cent of the entire population of this country in 1860 was made up of those less than twenty years of age, it was shown, while in 1920 this percentage had decreased to forty per cent. The decline in the birth rate was an instrumental factor in this loss among this class of people, it was pointed out.

If this increase and decrease among the age classes should continue, it will have a material effect upon all phases of life in this country, Mr. Steuart said. He pointed out that if there is a steady increase in the number of people who are more than fifty years of age, those industries which do not hire men of more than forty-five years of age, will have to adopt another policy.

There is always some danger of inaccuracy as to age, the director pointed out, for many women deliberately falsify their age, while even some men do not always tell the truth as to their years. Mr. Steuart said that as far as the women were concerned, those firms which cater to the wants of the female youth of the country, will not have to change, since it seems to be getting more and more popular for women of advanced years to adopt the same habits, clothes and customs of the young girls of the nation. What effect this would have finally the director could not predict, since it might cause even a greater increase in the span of life of the women, or it might have no effect.

The only hope now is that somebody will invent a way to use wheat in wall boards or tooth paste.

Part Of Old Land Bought At $130 Is Sold For $75,000

Romance Of Early Pennsylvania Recalled In Latest Land Deal

(International News Service)

YORK, Pa., July 17.—How land purchased from the Penns for the equivalent of $130 has increased in value until part of it could be sold for $75,000 is told in tracing the deeds to the York Airport company's 150-acre landing field.

Herman Miller, the original deed states, was conveyed the tract of 170 acres and 82 perches from "Thomas and Richard Penn, Esquires, true and absolute proprietaries and governors-in-chief of the Province of Pennsylvania," in 1771, for 26 pounds and eight shillings.

Miller must have had an eye for land values, for the next sale shows he conveyed the land in 1777 to one Daniel Shuey for 1,800 pounds.

The Shueys, Daniel and his wife, Rosina, may have been in hard straights, for in 1792 they sold the land to John Erb for 1,625 pounds—seemingly less, though values of money by that time may have accounted for the difference.

The Erb family held the land for 107 years, though there was litigation after the death of John Erb in 1841 asking the orphans' court to partition the lands, among them the 170-acre tract, which was purchased by his son Jacob for $10,223.

Finally on March 31, 1899, the tract passed from the estate of Henry Erb to Joe Kindig, who recently sold 150 acres of it to the York airport for $75,000.

COUPLE FIND DANCING A CURE FOR UNHAPPINESS

(International News Service)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 17—Dancing has brought happiness to one couple, and the lack of it has brought sorrow and separation to another, court records in the Shelby county courthouse reveal.

Ann Rae Duval and Vena Williams friends since childhood, met their boy friends on a ballroom floor. They toddled into friendship, shuffled into love and Charlestoned into matrimony.

But now Anna is seeking a divorce charging her spouse, Robert Cagle, with failure to support her. Apparently Cagle isn't contesting the suit.

"But he was such a beautiful dancer" she said regretfully.

"Ah, such a tragedy," said Mrs. Robert Wolfe, who was Vena Williams, Anna's pal.

"They didn't keep on dancing like Robert and I" Vena continued. "By always dancing together—well, we find it a sure way to stay happily married."

Wolfe who is a technical expert for an elevator construction company, says he hurries home from work every afternoon, "so that we can turn on the radio and waltz."

Mrs. James Cypher Meets With Accidents

Injured At Home And Later Is Hurt In Automobile Mishap

Yesterday seemed to be an unlucky day for Mrs. James Cypher, 337 Neshannock avenue. During the day as she was hanging some curtains in her home she stood on a sewing machine to reach the rods, when in stepping back she missed the machine and fell to the floor, sustaining some bruises.

In the evening she and her husband, with a group of friends, started to Lowellville, O., to a celebration, and a little way out of Hillsville went over the first set of railroad tracks all right and when going over the second set of tracks the springs of the car seemed to give an extra bounce and Mrs. Cypher, who was sitting in the back seat with two other women, hit the top of the car with her head and slumped down in the seat. When they stopped she was found to be unconscious.

An ambulance was called and she was taken to the New Castle hospital, where she remained in a comatose state for about three hours, but upon examination this morning it was found that the skull had not been fractured and she has regained consciousness.

Clara And Harry Show Guilty Conscience

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 17.—Those who dote upon coincidences will like this. Recently Clara Bow and Harry Richman, nationally known "lovebirds," attended the boxing bouts at Dexter Park in Brooklyn. They were accosted to their ringside seats unnoticed and everything was going along simply swimmingly until two rather sluggish pugilists began one of those ring waltzes.

Irritated beyond control, a bleacherite yelled at the crest of his lungs: "Say, why don't you two bums get married?"

Here was drama in the raw. Clara immediately peered at Harry. Richman returned the glance with a knowing smirk. And that was all. Other than, of course, the eager eyes which were cast in the direction of the couple when they were finally pointed out.

Lawrence County Boys In Company K Lead At Fort Washington

(Special To The News)

FORT WASHINGTON, Md., July 17.—Lawrence County's group of candidates at the Citizen's Military Training Camp atthis place is concentrated in Company K. That's plenty of reason to believe that K Company will lead the rest.

Despite the noticable change in temperature, fine work has been put forth by all the boys. The weather here is fine, the rain being very accommodating, coming at night, so as not to interfere with the boys days drill.

Each year at Fort Washington, an athletic program as well as a military schedule is planned by the camp authorities. Nearly every sport known is entered into the fellows. Some of the more important being baseball, indoor ball, basketball, swimming and tennis. In each of the above named sports, there will be two teams from each company, namely a senior team and a junior team. This system makes it possible for every fellow to take an active part in company competition.

Company K has already forged ahead in the baseball tournament. On Thursday our team beat Company 19-0. It was a great game. Dick Means of Ellwood City pitched a good brand of ball. In addition to his fine pitching, he further contributed to the winning of the game by knocking a home run, getting two hits out of three times at bat. Curley Cassella from New Castle plays second base on this team of ours. He played a heady game, delivering a couple of hits. Curley's ability cropped out again Saturday when he was picked as the best White in his platoon, (a first year man is a basic, a second year a red, a third wear a white and a fourth year a blue). The two Elsesser brothers from West Pittsburg are also playing good ball for the company. John plays shortstop and Richard plays at first. The former in the last Thursdays game got two home runs. They both played errorless games.

On the senior indoor ball team, we find Harold Ingram from New Castle. His position is shortstop. His New Castle friends will probably remember him as a member of the Spencer Paint and Glass Company team in New Castle's own league.

If one would wonder down to the tennis courts, he would see John Davidson, also from New Castle. In the swimming, we find Robert Bishop, Richard Cramer, Frank Dorsey, Arnold Tigley, William Patterson and Everett Rick of New Castle.

Arthur Barlett of Edenburg, Hugh Miller, Bill Irwin and Bill Shira all have positions on the indoor baseball team.

Tony Moskal holds one of the coveted positions with the color guards. Each evening before parade, he marches forth with his rifle on his shoulder, marching next to Old Glory. He makes a fitting guard. In order to be a member of the color guard, one must possess unusual abilities as a soldier.

Oren McFarland, a blue, has distinguished himself in a very fine manner. Each week, the remaining board picks out the best basic, red white and Blue. Mac was picked as the best blue for the first week of camp. He was also acting sergeant of K company last week.

In order that the third and fourth year men might acquire some of the knowledge necessary for commission as second lieutenant, school is conducted for the advanced courses each day. To date, the machine gun and .45 automatic, both have been stripped and assembled. One afternoon was devoted to shooting of the .45 automatic. Charles Clark made one of the high scores, shooting 129 out of a possible 150. Francis Tinsley, another blue, is especially adept with a machine gun. Being mechanically inclined hecan take down the machine gun and put it back together, blindfolded.

Harry Maddolks, Arthur Bartlett and John Davidson are all important members of the C. M. T. C. band.

Saturday afternoon, a sight seeing tour was conducted about Washington and other nearby places of interest such as Mount Vernon and Arlington Cemetery. There is to be another, since all could not make the trip the first time. Saturday night, a dance was held for all the fellows. The girls as well as the band were brought from Washington, D. C., at the invitation from our hostess. It was a most enjoyable evening for all who were present.

On Sundays, religious services are obtainable by the three faiths, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish. Those of the Protestant faith attend church in a large open air meeting place. Those of the Jewish faith attend church in the Post Exchange building with Rabbi Cohen of Washington, D. C., conducting the services. Catholic services were held at St. Domenic in Washington, D. C., In addition to these church services, Sunday school is held each Sunday morning immediately following the church services.

In a few more days our company will be going on the rifle range. All the fellows have been drilled closely on the handling, sighting and shooting of the rifle. All Lawrence Countians are expected to measure up to the mark by their predecessors in past pears at Fort Washington.

The subject of medals is always important. They are fine this year. In fact, Lloyd Rich says he "just can't get enough." If he doesn't do more than tip those scales when he leaves camp, quite a few will be disappointed.

Another week will bring more for "The News," We are all having a fine time and say "Hello."

Standard Oil Has Taken Over Waverly Oil-Gas Business

Standard Oil Now Operates 35 Stations In Pittsburgh District

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania is today operating the 35 service stations here of the Waverly Oil Works company and is supplying approximately 400 dealers who formerly handled Waverly products. Waverly until its absorption by Standard had been marketing petroleum products since 1880.

Although Standard has been in Western Pennsylvania only a year, it will have nearly 100 service stations in the Pittsburgh District by 1931, W. E. Beck, Standard branch manager said.

In getting ready to make a fight for oil and gas business in this territory Standard is aided by the recent opening of the Tuscarora pipe line from Bayway, N. J., to Midland, Pa. Gas brought by barge from the Midland terminal is stored in the new bulk plant here with its capacity of 5,000,000 gallons of gasoline.

Four tows each of 600,000 gallons of Standard gasoline were brought from Midland to Pittsburgh in preparation for taking over the Waverly stations.

Many Waverly employes will be added to the Standard payroll, it was said.

Miss Coulter was making a left-hand turn from Highland avenue to West Leasure and the Reneker car was coming down Highland. There is a dispute as to the responsibility for the accident.

Here's A Real Find, Numismatist-1517!

(International News Service)

DANVILLE, Pa., July 17.—George Yerrisk of Danville counts among his prized possesions a coin with the date 1517 which he uncovered here while digging a trench.

The coin, slightly larger than a silver dollar, carries an inscription but only the word "Fortissima" is legible. It is believed to have been a coin of old Italy, possibly of Rome. The piece was buried about three feet deep, and is believed to have been dropped many years ago by some collector, or more romantically, perhaps by an early adventurer seeking fame and fortune when this country was very young.

Immense Whale To Be Exhibited

Car To Be Located On P. & L. E. Tracks On East Side Next Week

Probably the largest and no doubt the strangest visitor ever to enter the gates of this city will arrive aboard her private "pullman" next Monday. We are speaking of Big Bertha the 68 ton whale, who travels on a specially constructed and reinforced steel railroad car.

She is the finest specimen of finback whale ever captured and measures more than fifty feet from the tip of her nose to the end of her tail.

In harpooning her, the whalers had a terrific battle, which lasted more than 17 hours, for the bomb on the end of the first harpoon failed to explode and it took that much time to wear her out, and reel her gigantic hulk into position for the second shot.

Her car will be parked at the end of the spur track facing East Washington street at the P. & L. E. Railroad freight depot, and open to the public from 9 a. m. till 11 p. m. daily except next Monday, which due to the late arrival wont open till 5 p. m.

There will be a small admission charge of ten cents for the kiddies and a quarters for the grown-ups. Also Captain Austin King and his crew of whalers will lecture continuously on board and give you very interesting facts pertaining to whales, their food habits, etc., and also facts of the whaling industry in general.

SEEK FEDERAL AID IN MOONEY CASE

Federal investigation of the case of Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings, serving life terms at San Quentin prison, for the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, in 1916, is advocated by Minnesota's blind senator, Thomas Schall, following the confession of John MacDonald at Baltimore. MacDonald declares he lied when he testified that he saw Mooney and Billings with the suitcase, believed to have contained the bomb. MacDonald is at upper left; Mooney, upper right; Schall, lower left, and Governor C. C. Young, of California, lower right, who refused to grant pardons to the men and declines to have further arguments until after the August primary.

Boys At Rentz Camp Are Having Great Time

CAMP FRED L. RENTZ, July 17.—The report of a cannon brought into action the second morning of older boys at Camp F. L. Rentz. A snappy drill in calisthenics tended to awaken the less disturbable individuals followed by the customary raising of the flag.

At morning assembly, Camp Director "Bill" Thomas delivered an inspirational message on the topic of "The All Round Camper," using as his illustration Romans 12. Choirmaster James Sotus led the camp in several sacred songs after which a trio, consisting of Tom Stevenson, J. Fox and S. Gaston, rendered for the camp's approval a selected number. Physical Director Henry MacNichols then conducted the choosing of the various athletic teams.

Almost immediately following assembly the Trojans conquered the Tom Thumbs in a close battle, the score being 8-7. The batteries for the Trojans were G. Muse and B. Duff; for the Tom Thumbs, J. Morris and J. Lynn, B. Rodgers and G. Swisher. The Farmers bowed to the Y Cubs in a fast game of volley ball.

Tent No. 7, with a perfect percentage, won tent inspection for the second consecutive time. All other tents tied with 97 per cent.

In the early afternoon the entire camp hiked over to Camp Yo-He to compete in a seven inning game of baseball. The Y camp won a walloping victory to the tune of 15-1. G. Muse and B. Rodgers pitched a shutout game against the Yo-He camp and J. Sotus caught behind the bat.

Enroute back to camp the boys enjoyed a cool plunge in the Slippery Rock followed by a hearty meal.

The day being consecrated for visitors, many parents and friends were present numbering in all about 50. Games were continued and the regular program was followed out in which the Trojans were held accountable for a loss which was made possible by the Tom Thumbs, the count being 3-2. Evening baseball was also played. The Y Cubs won an easy triumph over the farms, score 22-5.

A mock trial was held in the lodge with the Hon. James Sotus acting as judge. The lawyer for the defendant was sworn in and the jury was duly picked. The manner of swearing-in was somewhat elaborate and made very effective. The judge very seriously had the jurors and the lawyer take hold of a frogs tongue, hold their own and repeat after him some extremely unlawful remarks. Victims brought up for prosecution were J. Byers, being too pretty and having too many girls. They jury found him guilty in that (they believed) he had not good looks but "sex appeal". Hilbert Reynolds was prosecuted for writing to his girls without the proper censorship of the camp directors. Johnny Wilson was accused of "hooking" the little "kids". Case was dismissed as the judge was also guilty and because of the slickness of the defendant. The defending lawyer was D. Long, assisted by T. Stevenson. Jurors were J. Lynn, S. Gaston, Clem Semler and R. Wilkins. T. Stevenson was dismissed because of to much avoirdupois and on the grounds that the jury stand would not hold him.

Evening devotionals were held and the taps were blown by J. Weller.

Following is the list of teams and their players:

Y Cubs—Captain H. Reynolds, C. Senler, S. Fleming, J. Fix, B. Dunlap, J. Wilson, J. Foster, J. Byers and J. Coale.

Farmers—Captain Stevenson, J. Sotus, B. Kerr, C. Uber, B. Hart, J. Fisher, B. Mercer, D. Gardner, E. Stitzinger, J. Waddell and J. Sweezy.

Trojans—Captain George Muse, B. Duff, B. Wilkins, B. Kerr, V. Marino, Frazier, G. Stitzinger, McIntosh, McConahy, J. Levin and E. Wilson.

Tom Thumbs—B. Rodgers, J. Lynn, G. Swisher, J. Uber, J. Weller, J. Fox, B. Blews, J. Crombie, B. Morris and S. Wright.

Scribe, Bob Wilkins.

You see, America must have fewer cruisers than England so Japan will have fewer so Australia won't build any to give England more.

Reeves Scores "Scoop" Erects Traffic Light

If State Objects It May Be Possible That City May Have To Remove Light

DEPENDS UPON STATUS OF ATLANTIC AVENUE

Apparently Councilman Clayton H. Reeves "scooped" some city hall colleagues in the erection of a traffic light at West Washington street and Atlantic avenue yesterday and now crops forth the query: "Will the State Highway department lodge objections to the traffic light being placed there without the city first having received permission for the installation?"

According to reports it is necessary for the city to first receive permission to place traffic lights at the intersection of a continuation of a state highway, and Atlantic avenue might be considered as such, it is believed.

It is known that when the city desired to place a traffic light at Croton avenue and East Washington street it was necessary to obtain the sanction of the state, which was furnished and which was followed by the installation of the light.

Several years ago a cement "policeman" was installed in the middle of Atlantic avenue and a "stop" sign erected, which has regulated the flow into West Washington street. No arrests have been made for failure to stop as few fail to obey the sign, it is reported.

The traffic light, which was erected yesterday, hangs in the middle of West Washington street and regulates traffic east and west in West Washington and also the turns into and from Atlantic avenue.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Organize at Croton

Troop patrol leaders and their assistants were elected at an organization meeting of the new Croton M. E. church troop, held at the church building last night. The newly chosen scoutmaster, George McCracken, and his assistant, William Young, were in charge.

A program for the first meeting of the troop on July 18 at 7:30 was also planned by the leaders last night. This meeting will also occur in the church basement.

In the Beaver patrol Fred Warner was elected leader and Pearson Wright was named assistant. Charles Crisci and Bud Rowland were chosen leader and assistant, respectively, of the Indian patrol. Charles Polen and Clayton Cranmer were elected to lead the Pine Tree patrol and Walter Shuler and Harold Booth were named to like positions in the Raven patrol.

Boys of the Croton district interested in scouting are urged to be present Friday evening.

Young Mountain Climber In California Plunges To His Death

(International News Service)

LONE PINE, Cal., July 17.—Preparations today were underway for the recovery of the body of Howard Lamel, 18, Los Angeles mountain climber missing since July 5. His body was found in a 300-foot crevice on the rugged east slope of Mount Whitney.

The body was found late yesterday by Robert Evans and Norman Clyde, veteran mountain climbers who joined the search last Saturday. It was disclosed that Lamel had climbed more than 1,500 feet up an almost unconquerable eastern slope before the fatal plunge at an elevation of 13,500 feet which resulted in a broken neck and probable instant death.

Experienced mountaineers said that it would probably take several days to recover the body and bring it out.

Many airplanes and hundreds of men afoot had taken part in the search for Lamel.

Horses Drew Patrol In Days Of Norris, Phillips

Harry Norris, Chicago, a former resident, and Howard Phillips, superintendent of the collection of garbage today met at city hall and reminisced on the days when they were the drivers of the police patrol; back in the days when horses hauled the patrol and it was unnecessary to get out and crank.

Harry recalled that one of the speediest trips he had was when he drove the horse patrol in response to the alarm that Tom O'Toole had shot Roy Barber. On another occasion he told how the horses ran away and he shouted to Cy Horner to catch 'em.

Phillips said that the names of the horses at that time were Tom and Jerry and Phillips recalled how he had driven a pair of horses in answer to a murder call in the vicinity of Denver avenue with Frank Connery, late fire-chief on the patrol seat with him.

"We went so fast the big gray foundered, when we reached the south side" remarked Phillips who remarked: "We never had to use a whip on Tom and Jerry. In those days conditions were vastly different than those of today and the horses sure could make good runs."

Man Convicted On Charge Of Arson Is Sent To Prison

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Convicted of arson in connection with fire which cost the life of an unidentified man, Samuel Benjamin of Pittsburgh was today sentenced to serve from 3½ to 7 years in the penitentiary by Judge A. B. Reid in criminal court.

Benjamin's four-story brick business and apartment building burned following a gasoline explosion March 27, 1929. An unknown man, burned to death, was found in the ruins together with a torch and several containers of gasoline. The commonwealth contended that Benjamin sought to defraud insurance companies of $25,000.

State May Speed Up Traffic Movement

Not Likely To Keep Traffic Off Improved Thoroughfares For 21 Days Is Belief

It is not probable that the state highway department will compel all traffic to remain off Croton avenue, Grant street and Butler avenue for a period of 21 days following repaving, according to City Engineer F. F. Miller. The city compels traffic to remain off the streets and avenues paved here with concrete for that number of days.

"The state makes tests of the concrete, from time to time, and as soon as the engineers determine when it is safe for travel the lanes are opened" Miller stated today.

Complaint Made On Coal Rates

Complaint Filed With Commission By State Coal Traffic Bureau

ASK PROBE OF PRESENT RATES

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Complaint was made to the interstate commerce commission today by the Western Pennsylvania coal traffic bureau that present freight rates on bituminous coal from the Westmoreland fields to various eastern destinations were unlawful, unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory and in violation of the long and short haul provision of the interstate commerce act.

The bureau asked the commission to make an investigation of the present rate situation.

The complaint pointed out that for many years a considerable, but in recent years a declining tonnage of such coal has been moved eastbound, for track delivery at destinations thruout the six New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia, and the District of Columbia, and for tidewater trans-shipment over piers at the ports of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

For All Purposes.

Such coal has been used for practically all purposes for which high volatile bituminous coal is commonly used, and especially for vessel cargo, steam and domestic use, and other purposes.

The complaint alleges that the track delivery rates under attack are excessive, unjust and unreasonably high and give rise to undue and unreasonable prejudice and disadvantage as between destinations. It further charges that the tidewater trans-shipment rates to the piers in the three cities named are also excessive, unjust and unreasonably high.

Etheridge-Frame Meeting This Week

F. F. Miller, City engineer today stated he has heard nothing from the proposed conference between Superintendent Harry Etheridge, Harmony railway and E. C. The company has promised to put new rails but is opposed to concrete imbedding. They also want to operate cars while the repaving is under way. However, Etheridge stated that he would accept whatever plans and specifications the state district engineer presented when they confer, according to a recent statement of Solicitor Robert White.

Market Today Is Very Quiet

Market Continues Irregular Advance In Generally Quiet Trading Session

LITTLE INTEREST IS STIRRED UP

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 17.—Under the leadership of the coppers, amusements, and a wide scattering of miscellaneous issues, the stock market continued its irregular advance, in a generally quiet trading session today.

Interests committed to the rise found difficulty in attempting to stir up interest in the usual run of speculative favorites, and detecting the necessity of maintaining their dominant hold on price movements, the bull contingent switched promptly to such recently neglected groups as coppers, and amusements in which a lingering short interest was rudely prodded.

Amusement shares in particular ruled buoyant, with aggressive buying Fox Film, General Theatres, Loew's, Paramount and Warner Bros., bringing about a sharp advance in these issues

The betterment in the copper shares was attributed to the statement made by John D. Ryan, chairman of Anaconda, to the effect that present stocks of metal were not a menace to an early recovery in the copper business. Anaconda, American Smelting, International Nickel, and Kennecott were heavily bought for a time.

Of the old line industrial leaders, American Can contributed the stellar performance of the day in advancing steadily to 128 3-4 for a gain of 2 1-3 points. U. S. Steel, General Electric, Radio, and Westinghouse encountered stubborn resistance in efforts to make further headway.

Oils Irregular

Oils churned about in irregular fashion, with a revival of pool work in Indian Refining making it stand out in point of activity. At its high of 14 3-4, it was 3-4 above its previous close.

Motors and utilities were unable to maintain their show of early strength and with the notable exception of Auburn which continued its spectacular advance, declines on a moderate scale were in the preponderance.

Outstanding performances in the industrial list were contributed by Vanadium which reached the 100 mark for a gain of 38 1-4 points, and Simmons which ran up suddenly to 28 1-2 for a gain of 3 3-8 points. Vulcan Detinning also jumped into the limelight with a ten point gain.

New York Central featured an irregular carrier group with an advance of 1 1-2 points to 168 1-2.

Commodity markets were generally unchanged with wheat and cotton showing but minor variations in price.

Call money was in ample supply at 2 per cent renewal.

A feature of the midday turnover was the changing hands of a block of 27,200 shares of American Steel Foundries at 38, representing a net decline of 1 5-8 points.

Communists Are Quite Dangerous

Organized Communists Terrorize And Stab In Efforts To Gain New Members

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 17.—Organized Communists terrorize, stab and commit sabotage in their efforts to gain recruits to their cause, Police inspector John A. Lyons, head of the police radical bureau, testified today before the congressional committee investigating Communistic activities.

Communist unions have "knife mobs" which attack workers who refuse to join the radical cause, Lyons testified.

These mobs throw acid upon workers, slash the faces of regular union employes who refuse to join them, and destroy machinery and merchandise in factories, Lyons said.

In mass picketing during inspired strikes the Communists use sawed-off billiard cues for weapons to intimidate loyal workers and use women and children as shields, the witness testified.

New Type Fire Alarm Boxes In Washington St.

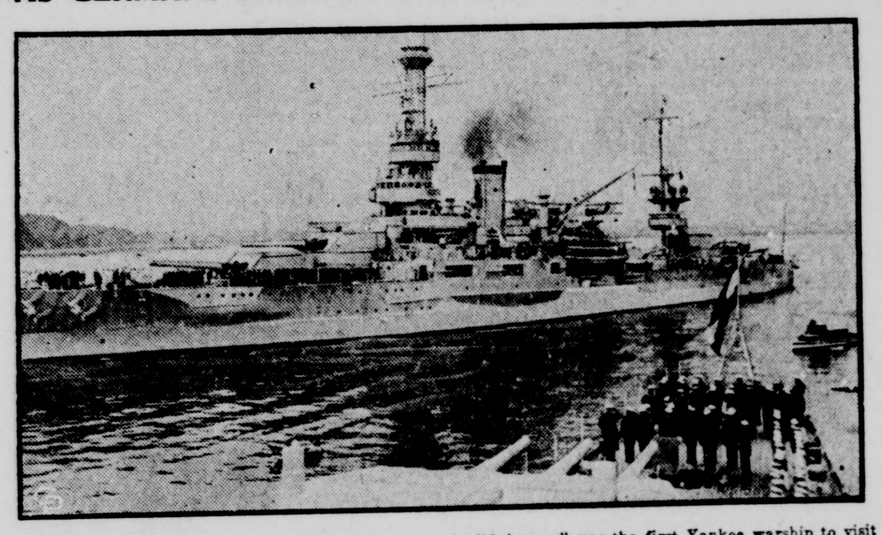
AS GERMANS SALUTED YANKEE WARSHIP AT KIEL



The crew of the German cruiser "Koeln" stands at attention as the American battleship "S. S. Arkansas" steams into the harbor of Kiel. The "Arkansas" was the first Yankee warship to visit Germany since the cessation of hostilities and received a hearty welcome from Teuton boats stationed at the famous Continental naval depot.

Here's Window Cleaning Job That Is Real Task

When better windows are to be cleaned in a better way caretaker Clingen Smith of the First Presbyterian church, North Jefferson street, will proceed with the job.

With a characteristic patience that would awe the average housewife to whom window cleaning is a part of the day's work, Clingen is now engaged in giving the beautiful church windows a thorough washing.

Today the caretaker was busily removing dust from the famous "Daughters of Lydia" window on the south side of the church edifice.

Patience and care must be taken in preparing church windows to look their best. A specially built scaffold is employed. To lean a ladder against one of the huge windows would be nothing short of a catastrophe, as the glass will not withstand much weight.

Teeter-Tottering Title Is Claimed By Two Young Girls

Evanston, Illinois, Girls Teeter-Totter For Eighteen Hours Non-Stop

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 17.—Mildred Borrey, 12, and Ruth Emerson, 14, of Evanston, today claimed the newest world's record—that for endurance teeter-tottering.

The girls see-sawed 18 hours and declared they could have kept going much longer had their parents not missed them.

While members of the fairer sex were showing their originality, hundreds of boys in Chicago and the middle west were sitting their way to fame and fortune in maples, selms, oaks, catalpas and almost every other kind of tree.

In some parts of Chicago the police interfered, but their orders for the boys to descend were met with catcalls.

Evanston officials have succeeded in putting a stop to all endurance stunts except one. That is the swinging feat being conducted by the eight children of Alderman Peter Jans. Working in relays, they have kept the back yard swing in motion for two days.

In some Illinois cities it is reported that anxious mothers are discouraging the record seekers by refusing to "refuel" with food and water.

Great Interest Shown In Sewing

Women Meet Wednesday Mornings At Jameson Memorial Hospital To Mend And Sew

A group of charitably inclined industrious women of the city join every Wednesday morning in sewing at the Jameson Memorial hospital and yesterday was no exception.

There were twenty five women on hand yesterday and the morning was spent in mending the various articles and in making new articles. The work done here is open to any woman in the city who feel inclined to help in this work, as an institution the size of the Jameson Memorial hospital, with the income and outgo of patients they have, need a great deal of help in keeping all articles in the meticulous condition that is required.

Forty Six Water Tests Are Made

In these days of guarding against typhoid fever the city health doctor, W. L. Steen makes many checks on water and during June he made 46. Twenty four were tests of city water and the other 22 were of wells and springs. Some of the springs were boarded up and signs posted denoting impurities.

Car Owners Must Clean-up Glass

Are Responsible For Broken Glass Falling On Streets In Auto Crashes

In recent automobile wrecks on the city streets, there has been neglect displayed in allowing broken glass from the wreckage to remain on the highway, endangering the tires of other motorists, who pass along after the wreck has occurred.

This has occassioned the question as who may be responsible for this condition following a wreck. According to the police, this is covered in a very definite manner by an ordinance of the city, which places the responsibility for cleaning up broken glass resulting from a wreck on the owners of the car or cars involved in such accident.

Frequently the city police, when not too busy, take it upon themselves to clean up the glass as a safety proposition and for the protection of other motorists.

That still does not change the situation that the owners of cars involved in collisions in which broken glass is strewn on the streets of the city must either clean up the glass themselves or see to it that the same is removed.

Posse Hunting Negro In Texas

Accused Of Criminally Assaulting Wife Of Merchant

(International News Service)

HOUSTON, Tex., July 17.—A large posse of armed men today scoured the outskirts of this city for a negro who criminally assulted the wife of a prominent merchant in her apartment here.

The attack took place a few minutes after the husband of the victim had gone to work this morning.

Entering the apartment through a rear entrance, the negro forced the woman to turn over her purse containing a small amount of money at the point of a knife, and then assulted her.

The negro was believed to have fled toward the outskirts of the city after the attack, and a posse of more than fifty men took up the search for him shortly after the crime became known.

Women Of City Will Preserve For Hospital

Mrs. Norman Martin, who is president of the Aid Society of the Jameson Memorial hospital is requesting all women of the town to keep the hospital and its needs in mind during the canning season and as the various fruits and vegetables are put up for winter use, put aside a glass of jelly or a jar of preserves, some home canned vegetables or marmalade for the patients in this worthy institution and in the fall they will all be gathered at a down town center and displayed before being taken to the hospital.

The Aid Society is trying to work out a systematic plan this year and Mrs. Martin has appointed women in the different denominations of the churches and in the various organizations of the city to take up the matter with the members and it is expected that by fall a nice assortment of canned goods will reach the patients, and how much a patient will appreciate a small bit of preserves or a spoonful of relish to tease a languishing appetite.

Calls To Enforce Old Health Measure Few Says Chief

Chief of police Cyrus Horner says that education has accomplished more than police power in the almost complete elimination of expectoration on public sidewalks, in street cars and busses. He says that while there is an ordinance on the city statutes prohibiting expectoration, it is rarely that a policeman has to use his police power, but will if occasion demands.

Council on April 12 of 1902, enacted a city law which made it unlawful for any person to expectorate or spit on any of the public sidewalks and paved footways of the city and anyone doing so forfeited a fine.

Under the ancient law, which is still on the books, it was and is still possible to fine a person as low as one dollar and as high as $10.00 and costs, in default of which the person can sojourn in jail for a period of ten days.

Those were the days of long skirts, but the state came along with an educational campaign, pointing out that it was an unsanitary act, apt to cause disease and through continuous exploitation of the fact expectoration has become, in public, almost a thing of the past.

Horner stated that he remembers when a crowd of loafers on the doorsteps of a building on the Diamond and bespattered the sidewalk with tobacco juice. This was broken up by arrests. Police Captain Elder also recalled breaking up a crowd which did the same thing on Washington street.

In those days all cities had anti-spitting in public ordinances and in some cases one man was delegated to act as an "expectoration 'cop'." He soon became known and persons gazed ahead, to the rear and side-ways before they expectorated.

"Nowadays people step to the curb if they want to spit" said Horner today. "Education has done more than police power. Of course if some person wishes to get in trouble all he needs do is to bespatter the sidewalks with tobacco juice or keep spitting there."

Is there a special key that must be used to solve cryptograms?

No one key will fit all cryptograms. Ciphers fall into certain classes which are easily recognizable to the expert. All ciphers of the same class can be solved by using the same method, but the key must be worked out for each cipher individually.

Taking the Census

How often is the United States census taken?

The constitution requires that a population census of the United States be taken decennially. The first census was taken in 1790 and the most recent this year, the fifteenth. The census bureau was made a permanent organization in 1902, and since 1913 has been a branch of the department of commerce.

Quoted From Washington

What is the correct phrasing of the statement to the effect that a man with a fault has no right to criticise another who has the same fault? Who made the statement?

George Washington made the statement that, "No man can with propriety or good conscience correct others for a fault he is guilty of himself."

Boulder Dam

When will work on Boulder dam be started?

Preliminary technical work is under way at present, but money has not been made available by congress for the actual construction work. It is unlikely that any construction will be begun before the summer of 1931.

Teachers' Training

What states require no normal school training of teachers?

Certification of teachers for the higher grades requires more or less normal school training in all states. In elementary schools in some states no normal school training is required. This subject in all its ramifications is discussed in Bulletin 19, issued in 1927 by the bureau of education, and can be obtained from the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C.

Susquehanna Water

Is river water generally, and the Susquehanna in particular, fresh or salt?

The Susquehanna is fresh water, as are most rivers. Some streams originating from mineral springs, are salty or mineralized in parts of their courses, and coastal streams become salty for several miles at high tide.

Arguments Heard In Application For Bus Permit

Motor Transit Company Would Increase Service Youngstown To Buffalo

SEVERAL CITIES ARE CONCERNED

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Arguments were before Examiner W. E. Best of the Public Service commission here today with reference to the application of the Edwards' Motor Transit company for additional rights in operating passenger service between Youngstown, O., and Buffalo, N. Y.

Among the Pennsylvania cities concerned are Clearfield, Dubois, Kane, Warren, Sharon, Franklin, Punxsutawney, Reynoldsville, Barnesboro, Grampian, Oil City, Cranberry, Ridgway, Weedville and St. Mary's.

Objection to an extension of service was made by the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad on the ground that present railroad service is adequate to take care of public needs. Examiner Best, who heard the testimony, will make his recommendation to the commission.

Specific extension asked for would carry buses over Pennsylvania highway route No. 65 between Sharon in Mercer county and Franklin in Venango county, following route 322. Connections would be made between Punxsutawney and Reynoldsville on route 310 and between Barnesboro and Grampian over route 219. Service between Franklin and Cranberry by way of Oil City also was asked for.

Operation of these other routes also was requested: Dubois to Kane over route 219, Dubois and Ridgway to Weedville over route 255, Weedville and St. Mary's over route 120, and Ridgeway and St. Mary's.

That his company, if the certificate of public convenience asked for is granted, will be able to make connections at Dubois, Kane and Warren for Buffalo was admitted by E. W. Edwards, manager of the Motor Transit company.

Does Not Know What Will Occur To Rails

Asked what disposition would be made of the rails removed from Grant street, C. C. Coulthard, superintendent of the local division, stated today that he does not know. Some of the rails are good for use and others are not, it was learned. The rails were removed, preparatory to the re-paving of Grant street. Some time ago the company abandoned street car service to institute bus service in Grant street. The company, following a court battle, was ordered to remove the rails and have done so in compliance with the order.

Sewers In Good Shape Says City Engineer

Not so long ago, following each heavy rain a multitude of complaints relating to flooded cellars reached the department of engineers but conditions are vastly different nowadays, according to F. F. Miller, city engineer. He pays credit to the department of sewer employes headed by Carmi Glover.

"Glover and his force of men are keeping the sewers clean" said Miller today, adding that the turbine sewer machine is doing good work.

AUTO STOLEN FROM OWNERS PROPERTY

ESCAPES SECOND MURDER TRIAL

Just paroled from Great Meadows prison, Comstock, N. Y., after serving 15 years of a "20 years to life" sentence for the murder of Detective Sergeant Charles Gradwell of Elmira, N. Y., faces trial, for burglary and larceny, because of the authorities' inability to secure legal proof to go through with the first degree murder charge of killing Chief John J. Finnell of the Elmira police department, for which he was arrested as he stepped out of prison. Westervelt, left, above, accompanied by Deputy Ralph J. Snyder, always had admitted the slaying of Gradwell but insists the chief was killed by his pal, Jack Penny, who escaped. Westervelt broke his leg in an attempted escape and still uses crutches.

Plane Lands Here To Secure Bearings

Flier Is Lost In Fog And Lands To Get New Directions

Apparently lost in a thick fog while on its way to Cleveland, a monoplane from Butler airport, carrying one passenger besides its pilot, descended on Bradford airport this morning to obtain correct bearings and directional data.

The plane, piloted by Joseph Machino, circled over the airport before landing at 7:45 a. m. Julius Bolanz, Bradford airport pilot, was able to direct the visiting pilot, who left a short time after arriving here. Robert Besmoore of Monessen, Pa., was the passenger. He had traveled to Butler and there chartered the monoplane for Cleveland.

It is reported in City Hall circles today that Councilman Stanley Treser caught a pair of wet feet and helped feed the fish in the section of Neshannock Falls yesterday afternoon when Sanitary Policeman Hoon attempted to impart the art of fishing to the department of streets superintendent. Some motorists are using Grant street, even though it is torn up. Sidewalks are used for automobiles that must get into some of the stores. Store towners are hoping that the paving will be done just as quickly as is possible.

Expect To Pour Concrete Soon

Some Men Have Been Dispatched To Help Get Grant Street Ready For Repaving

Although Woods & Golder had not started to pour concrete in Croton avenue, between East Brook road and the city line where it joins the Harlansburg road, City Engineer F. F. Miller expressed the belief that pouring would start either late today or early Friday.

Miller said that some of the employes of the construction firm have been sent to Grant street which is to be the second repaving job, all of which are to be concrete projects.

City To Salvage All Possible Brick

City Engineer Frank Miller stated today that the city plans to salvage as much brick as possible from Croton avenue, Grant street and Butler avenue, three thoroughfares to be improved by concrete.

"Citizens may not know it but the city uses a considerable lot of brick for repair work during a year" said Miller today. "We plan to salvage as much as possible."

White May Furnish Paving Opinion

Two Other Questions, North Street And Water Nuisance, May Be Discussed

It is anticipated that when city council convenes Friday at the city building that Robert White, solicitor, will furnish councilmen with an opinion relative to the city's liability for the proposed paving of Laurel boulevard, between Highland avenue and Neshannock boulevard. It is also likely North street widening ordinance will be acted upon and City Engineer Miller may present a report concerning the request of John Katillo, Leasure avenue, to have a water course closed as it makes a water nuisance on his premises.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

The Way OF THE World

By GROVE PATTERSON

DON'T BE SAD

The revenue bureau tells us that 3,000,000 tax payers pay taxes on incomes between $3,000 and $5,000 a year, while only 250,000 have incomes that come between $10,000 and $25,000. And as for those who get above $25,000 there are only 67,000. So, if you are not as rich as your neighbor, don't feel too bad about it. You are riding—or walking—with the majority.

RETIRING

So many men are always wanting to retire from business. It's all right to retire from a routine job that gets you down early in the morning and keeps you late at night—if you can afford to. But nobody ought really to retire. Nobody whose mind works wants it to quit working. When we talk about retirement we ought to talk about retiring to do something that is more important—and possibly more pleasant—than we were doing before.

SOFT PRISONS AND PAROLES

Prison was never meant to be a club where the inmates might sit about in great comfort and some luxury, sleep on feather beds, and enjoy the pleasures of an easy, unhampered life. Prison means discipline and should mean discipline. It should also mean the opportunity for reform, for betterment, for learning something useful. But the element of punishment ought not to be left out of the penitentiary. In some instances the coddling of prisoners has gone pretty far. On the other hand there is no more useful provision in our state laws than the provision for granting paroles to those men who show by their repentence and behavior that they are deserving of parole.

More paroles, properly granted, and fewer feather beds, is the best policy.

BUSINESS

Postal receipts would indicate that business is expanding. If your business is not doing well it may not be altogether because there is no business to be had. Perhaps you are not looking closely enough to determine just what the wants of the people are. Or perhaps you are not advertising in such a manner as to create new wants.

SICK?

An ounce of illness and a pound of worry might cover the cases of a good many people who are sick or think they are. The best automobile may develop a rattle. It doesn't mean you have to throw the machine on the junk pile. If you find you are not quite up to par don't worry. Get the repairs made. Usually it's half your imagination. A good physician says: "Seventy-five per cent of the people who come to my office do not have anything organically the matter with them."

DEBTS

The public debt, says Mellon, is being whittled down. Can we say as much for our private debts?

KONJOLA ONLY MEDICINE THAT BROUGHT RELIEF

No Wonder Konjola Is A Household Word In Tens Of Thousands Of American Homes

MRS. ANNIE ROVESTI

No medicine ever became famous through promises and claims. Results, and results only, are what count. Consider the experience of Mrs. Annie Rovesti, 313 Hickman street, Bridgeville, Pa., and then decide what you will do about Konjola. She says:

"I am glad to endorse Konjola for it is the medicine that banished my rheumatism. I had this in my legs for about a year. I had no appetite and was always tired. Headaches followed almost every meal. I was nervous and did not get the proper rest at night. This was my condition when I started taking Konjola. After the third bottle, I began to feel better, and then improvement was rapid. I have taken ten bottles, and I eat and sleep better and the rheumatism is gone. Gladly I recommend Konjola, and I intend to continue its use."

So it goes; victory after victory when Konjola's 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs, are put to work.

Konjola is sold by Love & Megown, the druggists, 204 E. Washington St., this city.

Curfew Law Calls For Fine Of 50 Cents; Jail

Police Chief Cyrus Horner and Police Captain Elder remember the days of the Curfew law—an ancient ordinance which came into existence in 1899, and which is still a law of the city—although it has not been prominent by enforcement except spasmodically and when common sense prompted a city policeman to send children under 14 years homeward after a certain hour.

The city ordinance was approved February 28, 1899, or more than 31 years ago and no doubt many of the men of today recall how the police shouted "Skidoo" and homeward they sped. In those days it was unlawful for children under 14 years to be on the streets afte. 8 p. m. between October and April and 9 p. m. between April and October.

The punishment for the offense? The ordinance states that "anyone found violating the ordinance shall be fined 50 cents and not over $2.00 and may be sent to jail for two days." How many were punished was not ascertained.

"Has the ordinance been enforced much of late years?" the officials were asked.

"Spasmodically" they chorused, explaining that when administrations changed the mayors sometimes put the Curfew law into effect.

Baseball Terms Now Invade Senate With "Batting Averages"

Senator Reed "Bats 1,000" But Grundy Scores Only .000

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17.—Speaking in terms of a "box score", Senator David Reed at the end of the first week of the special treaty session had earned a perfect attendance "batting average" of 1,000, but Senator Joseph Grundy had batted only .000.

During the first week of the special session there were 12 roll calls for the purpose of establishing a quorum in the senate. In baseball language, 27 senators earned a perfect attendance batting average of 1,000 by being present at all twelve of the roll calls.

Senator David Reed was included in this group batting 1,000, but his colleague, Mr. Grundy, was at the opposite end of the batting average list. Twenty-six senators batted .000 during the week by missing all of the 12 roll calls, and Senator Grundy was one of these.

Painting Steeple Is Perilous Job

CLARION, Pa., July 17.—Robert Hepler and David Palm of Clarion performed one of the most difficult feats of steeplejack work in order to paint the Clarion courthouse.

The hardest task was the painting of the Statue of Liberty and Justice at the top of the steeple. To do this the men placed a ladder on the top of the balcony, built a platform on the top of the ladder, placed a second ladder on the platform and finally tied a third small ladder to that, making the total distance 212 feet from the ground.

In order to paint the base of the structure the men tied a rope above it and hung on to this with one hand while they painted with the other.

Pennsylvania High In Average Total Tax On Motor Cars

State Ranks Twenty-Fifth Highest, According To 1929 Survey

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17.—Pennsylvania has the 25th highest average total tax paid on motor vehicles in the country, according to a survey compiled from official records by the American Association of State Highway Officials.

The total taxes paid on motor vehicles in Pennsylvania averaged $37.51 in 1929, the year on which the survey is based.

The average total tax for the state during the year was made up of the $16.88 average license tax per vehicle paid on the 1,733,283 motor vehicles registered in the state and the average gasoline tax per vehicle of $20.63 the survey reveals.

New Leaf Mounting Plan Seen At Slippery Rock

Are you acquainted with the new method of mounting leaves which is being used at State Teachers College, at Slippery Rock?

If you are not, you should visit the museum in the basement of the main building and see some of the mounts which are being made of all the common ferns and leaves in the Slippery Rock district, by George Hollibaugh, under the direction of Dr. R. A. Waldron. They look for all the world like real leaves, and yet the leaf which you see has withered and gone some time ago.

In making the mounts, the leaf of which the mount is to be made, is pressed into a plate of wax, and over this imprint is poured a plaster cast. When the plaster hardens, it can be removed and the raised part painted the color of the leaf. This makes a permanent image which will not fade or deteriorate with time.

A number of these mounts are already in the museum case and the others will be added as soon as they are finished.

Distract Child's Mind When Storm Frightens

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

A MOTHER called up one evening to arrange for an interview about her two-year-old-baby. Said she: "Every time there is a severe rain and wind storm this child vomits and cries in great distress. A few months ago following his dinner he was put to bed and left alone. Soon there came a terrific storm when the wind beat the rain heavily against the windows of his room. No one heard the child immediately but when the storm subsided his screams were discovered and, upon approaching him, I found he had been vomiting, was hysterical and could not be comforted for more than half an hour."

Obviously the child's emotional disturbance was so great as to induce nausea which, of course, is not unusual. This having been so very intense the same performance was more likely to occur under similar conditions even when the storm was less severe. The more beating of the rain against the window seemed enough in later instances to set off the vomiting mechanism. If you will read the literature by Burnham, Watson, Pavlov and others, on what they call the "conditioned reflex," you can easily see how such things may happen. You don't need to read them to understand. Any one having been nauseated by the taste of certain foods, may also have acquired an upset stomach, or even a spilling one, upon the sight of such a food or upon the hearing of it, or upon a thought about it.

To this mother I recommended that she be sure the child not be left alone awake during a storm and that when one approaches he should be amused by something very attractive; that she should try to lead him to grow interested in the patter of the rain.

Next day occurred another very violent storm. Following it she called me to cancel the engagement for, said she, "Your plan worked, only I called the raindrops little fairies tapping with their fingers to have fun with us." I have learned that this baby's fears of storms have wholly disappeared.

Another mother of a child of 18 months says he will have a bowel movement only when he sits on the nursery chair with all his clothes removed. Without being aware of what was happening she had always placed him in this fashion following his daily bath.

Another mother tells of the child of three who, when he hears the water from the faucet in the kitchen run, must make a bee-line for the toilet to urinate. The same phenomenon occurs when he is away from home.

Many adults acquire like mechanical associations. I have a friend who, for instance, after smoking a cigar must have a bowel movement. He smokes only one a day and at a regular time. This were a little inconvenient for the heavy smoker of cigars. Nor am I recommending it as a cure for constipation. Nothing in the cigar itself, but the peculiar association of which it had become a part.

I shall be glad to answer, in these columns, questions addressed to me in care of this paper, provided these questions seem to be of general interest.

Excellent Chance In Army At Present

Opportunity Afforded For Splendid Education As Well As Army Training

An exceptional opportunity is afforded young men between the ages of 21 and 25 and having two years night school education, to gain further education, learn a trade and benefit by the excellent care that Uncle Sam takes of the boys in the armed forces.

Sergeant J. W. Thompson, in charge of the army recruiting station here, has just been advised of the fact that any young man with the above qualifications will be guaranteed a further education and the opportunity of learning a trade in the Ordinance Department Schools at Raritan Arsenal, which have been centralized and improved at that point, if he can and will enlist.

There are also opportunities open for enlistment in the infantry for service in California and in the infantry coast artillery in the Panama Canal Zone and Sergeant Thompson would be glad to furnish further information.

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

ONE MOTHER WHO WILL NOT WORRY

"WHAT ARE YOU staring at?" demanded the Fly suddenly, and Peter had to confess.

"You! Don't you think it is rather heartless to lay your eggs and then fly off and leave them, never knowing whether they hatch or not, or what happens to the babies?" answered he. Fly sniffed.

"I guess I know my business as a mother," buzzed she. "My duty is done when I have laid my eggs in a soft, warm place, with food nearby.

I was born a house fly and a house fly I am, and in a moment I am going to fly to a splendid breeding place I know of."

"Where?" Peter was insistent.

"In the home where I live, of course," buzzed Mrs. Fly. "This very morning, before I flew on the window to take my morning's airing, I noticed a fat piece of roast beef on the pantry shelf. To be sure, there was a wire netting over it, but that won't keep me off. I shall wait until Cook isn't looking, sneak into the pantry behind her back when she opens the door, and drop my eggs onto the meat. Won't cook be mad! And won't my darlings have a feast when they come into the world?"

Peter answered never a word. The breath stuck in his throat. At that moment he remarked his mother saying they were to have roast beef for dinner, and now here was this mean Mrs. Fly, planning to spoil it. eH was just as clever as Mrs. Fly was. He would fool her. Maybe if he could keep her away from the house long enough, Cook would pop the roast into the oven before Mrs. Fly could harm it.

Mrs. Fly, nice Mrs. Fly, don't be off just yet, please. 'Tis still early in the day, and I want to ask you some questions!" Flattered by Peter's tone, Mrs. Fly settled beside him.

Next: "Wind Huffs and Puffs."

FLATTERED BY PETER'S TONE, MRS. FLY SETTLED BESIDE HIM

Enjoy All Cod Liver Oil's Benefits

Take Tablets Free from Fishy Taste

Everybody realizes the unequalled value of cod liver oil for restoring thin, weak, sick men, women and children to health and keeping them fit—but after a few doses the average person forgets the value and thinks mostly of that unfortunate fishy taste and odor.

But now a remarkable scientific process completely removes this handicap—takes the weight and strength increasing elements (vitamins A and D) from pure, vitamin-tested Norwegian cod liver oil and puts them without loss of potency into sugar-coated McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets.

McCoy's give you the full benefits of cod liver oil—all of its amazing ability to build the body up to normal weight and strength have been put into them. Yet McCoy's taste like candy and do away with childhood's dread of cod liver oil.

Mrs. Henry H. Manchester of Maywood, N. J., who says that most children hate liquid medicine but that it is easy to give them tablets, finds McCoy's wonderfully beneficial for promptly increasing the weight and strength of her little son.

For your double assurance—McCoy's have been tested and approved by the Good Housekeeping Bureau of Foods, Sanitation and Health. And McKee's, Eckerd's, Love & Megown guarantees them—60 tablets 60 cents.

Coulthard Sees Return Of Street Car Riding On Large Scale Soon

Chris Coulthard, superintendent of the New Castle division of the Penn-Ohio railway foresees a return to street car riding in discussing conditions with a New Castle News representative.

The street car official, with 30 years of service, both as an operator and an executive, stated that "people of today are learning to economize and that they are beginning to leave their automobiles at home and ride the street cars and busses to and from work."

At the present time there are 32 cars and four busses in operation here. Sixteen cars are on early runs and 16 cars on late runs. There are two busses on early runs and two busses on late runs, he stated.

Recalling the operation of 30 years ago, Coulthard stated there were 20 street cars in operation. He said that recollection tells him that the street car company in that period carried more passengers than it does today.

"The rate of fare was five cents," added Coulthard, pointing out that it is now 6½ cents should one purchase tokens and 10c straight fare. During that time the carfare, he said has raised only 1 1-4 cents as practically everyone uses tokens now.

"In 1900 the men received 12½ cents an hour for their labor. Today they receive 64 cents. Traffic has decreased but material costs have gone up." He pointed out how this has taken place, saying:

"Thirty years ago a tie cost 75 cents and now it costs $1.00 and $1.50. Trolley wheels, those which form the contact between the trolley and the electric wire then cost 50 cents but now costs $1.50.

"I am willing to go on record and predict that there will be a general return of street car riding," said the superintendent. "People of today are beginning to realize that they cannot operate their automobiles and save money.

"The person of today is learning to economize. Purchase a machine at $1,000 and try to sell it the next year. There will have been a depreciation of between $400 and $500 on the car. How many street car rides ill that difference have paid for?"

Coulthard stated that there are very few cash fares nowadays. "Everybody uses the token system and effect a saving of 3 3-4 cents for each ride or eight rides with token for every five cash fares."

Formal Opening On Thursday, Friday And Saturday Of This Week

Announcement is made today that Thursday, Friday and Saturday this week are formal opening days for the new Whelan Service Drug Store at 133 E. Washington street.

In the announcement, the Whelan Company's official notice to the people of New Castle states:

"Because we believe in New Castle, we are happy indeed that conditions are now favorable for reopening our drug store which was closed about a year ago due to conditions beyond our control. In our sincerity, we have spared neither money nor effort to make the new store a place you will like to trade, where quality, service and low prices will prevail."

T. J. CASEY
Manager of the Whelan Drug Co.'s local store.

Mr. T. J. Casey, who takes over the management of the new Whelan Drug Co. store, has been a resident of New Castle for the past 11 years. A bargain celebration is promised at the formal store opening this week with a trained and capable sales staff in charge.

The attractive new store is completely stocked with sundries as well as electrical goods, stationery, cameras and supplies.

Drug and prescription departments are directed by graduate licensed pharmacists.

The soda department is a special feature with a completely equipped soda fountain and luncheonnette service.

In addition, the store includes a complete United Cigar store.

Samuel O. Stilley will be assistant manager of the new store, while Charles O. Rogers will be in charge of the cigar department. James Thompson will manage the soda fountain service.

Best baby in county!

Always happy and comfortable; free from colds

OF COURSE every family has a "best" baby in it. But some babies are a lot nicer than others just the same. And that is so largely a matter of health. For psychologists and medical men say that good nature in babies is dependent largely on their comfort. They are too little to tell you what ails them. So they cry. And you have to guess it's a rash, or chafed skin, or a stopped-up nose.

That is, you guess, unless you are wise enough to prevent these troubles with the handy "Vaseline" jar.

For "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly is an essential part of any baby outfit. Apply it to the baby's skin after the bath; to the head too; then take little swabs of cotton on toothpicks, dip it into the Jelly, and very gently apply to the baby's nostrils. This cleanses and lubricates. Tends to prevent colds.

These are easy, safe things to do. Ask your doctor. "Vaseline" Jelly has been used by mothers and doctors and hospitals for half a century.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

Tidbits from correspondents:

"When my husband wipes the dishes, I say "Thanks, that helped a lot." That helps a prideful inflation like gas helps a balloon. When I make a tie or mend something for him I get a thank you and often a hug. If he puts a rug down wrong, I close my eyes and slyly remove it when he isn't around. He's so far from an 'overlord' that I like to imagine its the result of our mutual Thanksgiving."

F. K. Malcomb, Ill.

"Your Leona exaggerates and is unreasonable to judge all brunettes by the few who vamped her husband. If she were not so unreasonable and cocky, she would stop and wander why it is her husband leaves her, and why he picks the brunettes. In my opinion they didn't hunt him out. Brunettes have good sense."

L. Oak Glen, Illinois.

A young man writes from a battleship to tell me that after he married, his mother-in-law persuaded his wife to leave him and get a divorce. Now they both see their mistake and want him to give the ex-wife another chance. When he was divorced the boy joined the navy. He doesn't love the ex-wife any more, yet he feels he shouldn't marry anyone while she lives.

Of course if it is a question of religion, that is for you to decide, but you didn't mention that. You will have to settle that question with yourself. If you do believe in remarriage after divorce, then why are you talking this way? A man in love knows he's in love. There's no question in his mind. If you are in love with this girl back home, why don't you marry her? Yours is a strange letter. I don't think you know your own mind so you better settle the question by staying single. You're young, what's the hurry?

I've a half dozen letters from girls who are pining over men who don't want them. They had their brief chance and they couldn't hold the men. Perhaps they were not worth holding, but the fact remains that the men don't want them and that should be enough for any woman. When a girl says there is only one man for her and he treats her shabbily and dodges her, she's either without pride or likes being mistreated. There is always a good man who knows how to treat you, why waste tears on such people? If you refuse to be happy no one can do anything for you. But you are a little bit crazy, all of you, to hug to your heart an alleged dead romance that really never did amount to anything.

Thirteen Sentenced By Judge In Mercer; Health Report Good

Thirty-Three Contageous Cases Reported For County; Liquor Seized

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., July 17.—Thirteen were sentenced Tuesday afternoon before Judge J. A. McLaughry. Of that number were five who had pleaded guilty to larceny. The rest were liquor violations. The number of larceny cases seems, however, to be fast coming to the front in this county. It cannot be attributed to hard times because the stolen goods would not be of any aid.

The last health report offered by county health officer was good for the county. The warm weather must be of benefit to the youngsters. There were 18 cases released and 33 cases reported, among these the greatest number being measles, of which there were 17 cases; chickenpox 11, whooping cough 3, mumps 1, diphtheria 1. The health report for June shows there were 111 cases reported and 98 released and those reported are as follows: chickenpox 42, measles 28, whooping cough 19, mumps 10, scarlet fever 7, typhoid fever 2, erysipelas 2, pneumonia 1.

The sale of land for delinquent taxes will not be nearly as large as it was expected to be, as a great number of them have paid. The sale is to take place the first Monday in August.

There will no doubt be a total of 325 on the list, and of this lot the borough of Farrell will have 75.

O. M. Sandell of Sharon has brought suit for $290.14 against Fred McWhirter of West Middlesex, when a car owned by the defendant struck a truck, damaging it badly.

A large quantity of liquor was dumped this morning by Sheriff Dan Callahan. The exact amount was not determined, but it was one of the largest quantities ever dumped here.

The transcribing of testimony in the case of J. W. Cameron has been completed by Court Stenographer Gordon Miller and arguments for a new trial will soon be heard by Judge Hildebrand, who heard the case before.

Problem Of Prodigies

Child's Early Attainments May Or May Not Presage Later Brilliance, Cases Show

EDWARD ROCHE HARDY, JR.

HARDY AS COLUMBIA FRESHMAN

WINIFRED S. STONER

NEW YORK, July 17.—The problem of how far adults may safely go in encouraging the precocity of brilliant child prodigies has always been a hotly debated subject among educators and parents.

The history of various attempts to develop youthful minds before their time gives no answer. MacCauley, Charlotte Bronte, Voltaire, Chopin and Goethe were all geniuses whose early childhoods presaged their later eminence.

But there are scores of other baby intellectuals whose later lives failed to fulfill the promise of their early attainments. The two outstanding American prodigies of this century are Winifred Sackville Stoner, Jr., and Edward Roche Hardy. Nathalia Crane, the poetess, was another modern child marvel.

It is difficult to say whether Winifred or Edward accomplished more mental miracles in childhood. Hardy knew three languages at three years of age, matriculated at New York university at five, passed the entrance examinations of Harvard at ten, entered Columbia—the youngest student there—at 12 and won the treasured Phi Betta Kappa Key at 14.

Winifred astonished the world in her fourth year by operating a typewriter. At six she wrote "Mother Goose in Esperanto" and was the fluent mistress of several languages. While still a child she collaborated with her mother in the composition of a musical comedy.

Today, at 22, Hardy is deacon in the Protestant Episcopal church and will shortly be ordained a full-fledged minister. Besides his church work he teaches history and Greek at the General Theological seminary.

Miss Stoner has not found so normal and untroubled a road in adulthood. On her 18th birthday she married a man who represented himself as a French count. Discovering that he was no nobleman but the possessor of a long criminal record she subsequently filed suit for divorce.

Hearing that her husband had been killed in an automobile accident, Miss Stoner halted the proceedings and married Louis Hyman, whom she divorced two years later.

Some time ago her "dead" husband popped up in an excellent state of health and asked Winifred to take him back. Instead she started an annulment action against him.

Winifred was once reported engaged to marry Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state of the United States.

Though she has written many books during her grown-up years, these have by no means duplicated the sensational success of her efforts as a child.

Most of the recent press notices on Winifred have concerned her marital adventures rather than the products of her amazing brain.

Is child precocity to be encouraged? No one knows the answer.

Bo'Broadway

by JOSEPH. VAN:RAALTE

By Central Press

NEW YORK, July 17.—In their frequent contacts and adjustments in the matter of chorine nudity on the New York stage, the police and Earl Carroll, better known as The Knight of the Bath, seem unable to reach any permanent truce.

Few of us are able to figure out the intricacies and peculiarities of current morality.

If exposure of greed, cowardice, dishonesty and other moral defects arouses no marked public resentment, it's easy to picture Earl Carroll wondering vaguely why a little thing like a few undressed women on the stage of a 42d street theatre should cause the police to blush so furiously that their celluloid collars take fire.

Surely crowded slums and subway transportation in Tammany Town today are a thousand times more detrimental to the morals of the young than Earl Carroll's "Vanities," which cater exclusively to Longacre Lil and her sappy consort, The-Out-of-Town-Man-About-Town.

There's no law compelling the pure-of-heart to buy tickets for an Earl Carroll show; and certainly no one who attends one of his performances does so under the delusion that he is participating in a meeting The Epworth League.

If a visitor from Mars, never having heard of the "Vanities," stumbled into the lobby of the New Amsterdam theatre today he wouldn't be long in doubt as to the nature of the performance The Earl of the Tub is conducting there.

And in this connection it is well to remember that the rattlesnake earned the title of Gentleman-Among-Reptiles because he warns before striking.

The wearily-wise and tawdrily-clever, along Broadway, shrug every time a producer like Earl Carroll is arrested for running a dirty show and say: "More advertising."

It may be advertising and again it may not be. The theatre men in New York aren't the only creators who run afoul of the cops. Artists, authors, publishers have to watch their step and tread as circumspectly as a bishop at a bazaar if they want to avoid difficulties.

The line between the decent and the indecent is constantly being redrawn.

Chick Sale, in the acme of vulgarity and bad workmanship, exploits the chalet de necessite and reaps fame and fortune.

James Branch Cabell, F. F. V., pens "Jurgen," in an amusing little tract of the times, and the volume is suppressed.

True story and confessional magazines are peddled by the tens of thousands to sophomorons; and unhampered, Broadway cigar stores feature on their counters Rabelais and Boccaccio.

Mr. MacMonnies, the sculptor, carves "Bacchante" and an outraged police force at once tosses a tarpaulin over it, to hide the "naked woman dancing in her shame."

Getting back again to Earl Carroll: We all know the ancient joke about the child asking its aristocratic parent whether a certain course of conduct was wicked, and being told: "It's worse than wicked my child. It's vulgar!"

Vulgarity may be classed as the greatest of vices, becuase it is the combination of so many small ones.

It is possible that Earl Carrolls venality, of which the police complain, involves solely a question of vulgarity.

But vulgar or not, this much may be said in his defense—and I step to Earl Carroll's defense with marked reluctance:

Those of us who, like Kipling's trooper, take our fun where we find it, know exactly what to expect when we pay money to witness an edition of Earl Carroll's "Vanities".

And what even the most sanctimonious of us take away from a show shop depends largely upon what we bring to it.

Build New Homes In Mt. Jackson

Mt. Jackson, in North Beaver Twp. is undergoing something of a building boom at the present time. There are four or five new homes being erected in the village on the road leading towards Bessemer.

Several new homes are also being erected on the road leading from the Seventh Ward in this city, towards Mt. Jackson.

Old Public Pump Replaced With Modern Fountain

ELLWOOD CITY, July 17—The wheels of progress have taken another turn in Ellwood City and the old public pump at the corner of Lawrence avenue and Sixth street is being replaced by a shiny white drinking fountain.

Coils have been installed in order to cool the drinking water which is to be furnished by the city. The fountain is furnished by the local W. C. T. U.

Time was when the pump was first presented to the city, a tin cup hung by a chain for all to drink from. After a number of months had passed and sanitation was brought forward and discussed, the drinking cup became a memory, not to be forgotten by many who would fain pass that way for their cooling draught.

With the passing of the tin cup came the "penny in the slot" cups, but there was too much trouble with penny thieves and this had to be abandoned.

For a time there was nothing at the pump, and children were delighted to drink from cups formed of their hands. Then some public spirited person, not wishing to see the public thirsty, brought a glass and left it there.

With the old pump taken away, Ellwood will remain without a public pump, for it is the last of its kind, here.

Librarian Interested In Compiling Local History For Readers

ELLWOOD CITY, July 17.—The question "Are you posted on Ellwood City?" recently appearing in the News headline, has given our up to date and interested public librarian, Mrs. Catherine Charles, food for thought.

She is inclined to believe that Ellwood people, like the man in the lecture on diamonds in his own back yard, are inclined to know more about other towns and cities than their own.

With this thought in mind, Mrs. Charles after learning of the interest taken in the recent questionnaire put before the Kiwanians at their meeting, has decided to put information concerning our own town before the public.

In just what way, it has not been decided, but the probable outcome will be a scrap book, with all sorts of information concerning Ellwood's growth and of its condition since its incorporation in 1892 Just what building occupied certain territory and by whom it was owned, etc.

No doubt a cartoonist will be brought into play with a few sketches made from some old tin types, in possession of many of the old residenters. In other words, people are interested and are not satisfied with the small portion of information gleaned from the questionnaire, but wish to learn more, and will be in position to gain this knowledge if the librarian carries out some partially formulated plans, assisted by those who are in a position to give her correct information.

Cuban Stars Defeats Ellwood City Nine, 7-6

Fitzge And Burke Star As Tubers Lose; Large Crowd See Close Tilt

ELLWOOD CITY, July 17—A highly touted aggregation of ball players known as the Havana Red Sox came to Ellwood City Wednesday night and engaged in a close and interesting battle with the local Beaver County League nine with the former winning by the close score of 7 to 6 before one of the largest crowds of the season. The visitors arrived here by bus in which they travel all over this country and this was their last appearance in this district as they go up to Canada to take part in a series of games there. It was a treat to see these boys in action and their fine performance of handling the ball.

As was expected the Red Sox started off the fray by collecting two runs in the opening frame but the tilt became more interesting when the local crew got together in the fourth and annexed two scores to bring the fray to a deadlock. It was soon broken as the winners enjoyed a rally in the fifth frame whereby they added four tallies.

Ellwood displayed a strong attack as they continued to fatten their score by crossing the plate once in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings while the opponent secured only one more in the seventh session. It looked as though the enemy was quite satisfied that the bacon was copped but the Ruskovic Club threw a scare into them as they added another marker in the last period and lacked only one point to tie the contest.

The Tubers pulled a surprise as they imported Reich, a high class hurler who twirled a fine game allowing the opponent only thirteen swats while the local club gardnered twelve from Ricardo and Thomas. Reich not only performed well from the firing line but handled the stick in first class fashion as he socked out a home run.

Fitzgerald enjoyed a good day at the bat by collecting three bingles and a double and crossed the plate twice. Burke secured a single and double while Fred and Mike Sanders contributed a double sacker apiece. Ellwood's defense was very good and the general field work clicked at a good pace as only one error was chalked up against them.

Lauzan was the big star for the Red Sox as he alone was marked up for four hits and two runs. One of his hits was good for three bases and another for two. Ramierez, leader of the Cubans, socked out a home run while Ricardo and Gomez had a good average with two hits apiece.

This attraction was the second of the year as the Tubers were hosts to the Homestead Grays recently. Last night's tilt drew a large crowd and it is expected that a few more will be booked up before the season closes.

A big "Booster's Day" is being planned by Manager Al Thomas for July 30th when a special team will be booked. Tonight the local club travels to Beaver to take part in the regular county loop contest and on Saturday will entertain the Ambridge nine on the local lot. Ellwood has been playing an exceptionally good brand of ball in the last few contests and the infield especially seems to have improved very much.

It was decided at this time to arrange for the annual picnic, August 20th, to take place at the home of Mrs. Frank Stamm of the Zelienople road. A luncheon will be held at noon followed by the business session. Each member will be priviledged to bring one or more guests.

PRESENTING RADIO'S NEWEST MIRACLE

PHILCO TONE-CONTROL

RADIO'S newest marvel—a tone control knob on the front of the set which gives you mastery over the quality of tone sent from the broadcasting station.

Think what it means to bring in your favorite jazz band with the crisp, snappy tone of dance-floor REALITY. Consider the enjoyment of bringing in the great Philco Symphony concerts in the mellowest, richest tones, or, if the music offers big brass sonority, you can instantly make it as brilliant as you like, with a turn of the hand.

Philco Tone-Control

Brilliant-Bright-Mellow-Deep

Turn the Philco Tone Control to these four positions of TONE QUALITY. Change speech or music to suit your taste. You have a PERSONAL CONTROL over the tone sent you by the station. Operate it yourself with this knob on the front of the set and vastly increase your sphere of radio entertainment. Truly "radio's newest miracle."

The radio world has been waiting for the perfection of this invention. Everybody has wondered when the radio LISTENER could take a hand in the performance, right at home.

Here it is at last! Hailed all over the land as the greatest step forward in radio reception since the perfection of Philco balanced units, which STILL serve to give you the wonderful lifelike UNDISTORTED Philco tone.

It is natural that Philco should again lead the industry with PHILCO TONE CONTROL. Philco has long been identified with the perfection of radio tone. In 1929 these marvelous sets became world leaders, in popular favor and in sales, because of the wonderful tone produced by Philco's balanced units; new circuits of extraordinary selectivity; tremendous distance ability, opening up of vast new fields of enjoyment for owners.

All these great features are retained and Philco Tone Control is added. Philco's new radios are all you can buy in radio, no matter what you pay. The Philco Screen Grid Plus has, in addition, AUTOMATIC VOLUME CONTROL which counteracts fading, so you can not only get, but hold and enjoy programs. Each Philco Radio has a new, improved electrodynamic speaker and a New Station Recording Dial on which you can log your favorite stations. Available for operation on AC or DC electric current, or by battery. And the new Philco cabinets are exquisite creations of America's foremost designers. America's tremendous acceptance has made them far from expensive. Such values are hard to believe until you inspect the Philco line.

We want you to operate the new Philco with Philco Tone Control in your own home. The demonstration won't obligate you in any way. Easy terms, of course, if you decide to buy.

Civil War Veterans Of Both Sides Will Celebrate Antietam

Famous Battle Site Will Be Visited By Remnant Of Old Armies

(International News Service)

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 17.—Confederate and Union army veterans are invited to attend the celebration at Sharpsburg, near here, which on September 17 will mark the 68th anniversary of the battle of Antietam, one of the bloodiest conflicts in the Civil War.

The files on hand, showing the lists of the soldiers who fought in the battle is incomplete, and every effort is being made to discover all of the veterans living who fought in the battle, in order that they might be present as honor guests at the celebration.

The observation is to be of that event as an historical battle and not a Northern victor, the committee in charge states.

Wet Republican Wins Primary In Montana Voting

Judge Galen, Wins Republican Senatorial Nomination; Is Avowed Wet

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Another wet-and-dry senatorial contest was chalked up today for decision in the November elections as a result of the Montana primary.

Late returns give the Republican nomination overwhelmingly to Judge Albert J. Galen, one of the state's outstanding jurists and an uncompromising foe of prohibition.

Judge Galen will oppose in November Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the veteran Democratic incumbent, who is now completing his 18th year in the upper house.

Senator Walsh has had a brilliant career in the Senate, which includes the prosecution of the oil scandals. Ordinarily he would be considered a safe bet for re-election, yet Galen is such an outstanding figure in the state, and the prohibition issue is so keen that the Democrats are acutely worried over his chances.

Walsh has been a consistent dry throughout his senatorial career, despite the accepted wetness of his state. Montana has twice gone wet via the referendum route, and is now one of the few states that has no state enforcement code to back up the Volstead act. The state law was repealed a few years ago, notwithstanding herculean efforts of the drys to prevent it.

The most plausible explanation is that the gods on Olympus think this is a Democratic administration.

When people clamor for a new religion, what they really want is a religion that isn't too religious.

REDUCTION IN FIRE INSURANCE RATE ON SCHOOLS

School Board Receives New Rating At Meeting Last Night

For the second time within the year the schools of New Castle get a reduction in their fire insurance premiums, this one a substantial reduction. At the meeting of the board of school directors Wednesday evening a new fire insurance contract was authorized which will annul the present three-year contracts and give the district coverage for five years, with an additional premium of $4,694.30.

Some time ago the insurance committee recommended the joint coverage contracts which were presented by the fire underwriters. Under this system all losses are borne jointly by many insurance companies instead of one company bearing all the loss on the one building it happens to protect. This arrangement gave the district much more insurance for less premium.

The new arrangement gives the district coverage for 22 buildings and contents for five years for a total premium of $23,145.78, an average yearly premium of $4,629.15. The old contracts called for a premium of $21,427.53 for three years, an average yearly premium of $7,142.51. The savings to the school district is apparent.

The total insurance carried on buildings and contents amounts to $2,916,500, of which $2,627,700 is for the buildings proper and $288,800 is for the contents.

Broadway's "Bad Boy" In Toils Again

Earl Carroll's Meteoric Career Receives Another Setback By Censorious Police, With Showgirls In Court

FAITH BACON — FRANCES JOYCE, IRENE AHLBERG & EILEEN WENZEL — JOYCE HAWLEY

NEW YORK, July 17.—Earl Carroll Broadway's best known bad boy is in trouble again!

The police have just descended on his latest and most expensive production the new "Vanities" and carted away eight of his most lovely showgirl beauties and Jimmie Savo, a comedian, to the police station.

Whe the blue-coated invaders arrived at the theatre, Carroll, himself could not be found. The next morning, however, the immaculate, sober-faced Earl appeared at police court and was held in bail along with the others.

The show that caused all this furore was permitted to continue when deletions, dictated by public authorities were made in several scenes. But the charges against Earl and his nine employes still stand.

Recalls Famous Party

It was over four years ago that Carroll gave the famous wine bathtub party for his theatrical "angel" that resulted in his being sentenced for a one year term in Atlanta prison. Some of the most prominent people in New York City attended that astonishing function.

The high point of the festivities came when a young lady named Joyce Hawley stepped into a bathtub filled with wine. Carroll was arrested when he denied that the girl took a vintage bath a the revel in his theatre. He was convicted of perjury.

All Broadway sprang to his defense, but Carroll was incarcerated nevertheless.

When Carroll came back from Atlanta he made a phenomenal comeback. The new revues that he produced eclipsed all his previous efforts in both costliness and entertainment value.

His newest show, on the boards only a few weeks, outdoes for sheer splendor of settings, as well as for risque scenes and dialogue anything ever seen on the American stage before.

Among the young ladies who will stand trial with Carroll are: Miss Irene Ahlberg, the "Miss America" of last year's beauty contest at Galveston: Frances Joyce, the "Miss San Francisco" and Faith Bacon, a fragile dancing beauty.

Earl Carroll started his professional career as a lyric-writer for popular songs. At one time he wrote the words to music penned by the unforgettable opera tenor Enrico Caruso.

Sensational Career

His sensational rise to the front rank of American musical comedy producers is one of the epics of Broadway. His attempts to wrest first honors in this field from Florenz Ziegfield has resulted in much bitterness between the two.

Under the New York State law, theatres housing indecent theatrical productions may be padlocked for one year. If this happens in the "Vanities" case, Carroll's greatest rival will suffer some of the consequences.

For one of the owners of the showhouse at which Earl Carroll exhibited his latest extravaganza is none other than Ziegfeld—who refers to himself as "the glorifier of the American girl."

Bus Death Toll Seven For State During 6 Months

Nearly 2500 Motor Buses Are Operating In State At Present

HARRISBURG July 17—Seven persons were killed in motor bus accidents during the first six months of 1930 according to transportation companies' reports to the Bureau of Accidents of the Public Service Commission.

John P. Dohoney, chief of the bureau, pointed out that there are 2,430 buses operating within Pennsylvania, each with a high daily mileage, and that the bureau feels the safety measures instigated by the commission, especially at railroad crossings had produced results that exceeded expectations.

"During the first half of 1930," Chief Dohoney said "two bus accidents of major proportions occurred in the United States. A school bus was struck by a passenger train, killing nine school children and the driver. A few months later an interstate bus loaded with passengers was struck by a train in a Western state and 22 persons were killed. The bureau calls attention to the fact that such public catastrophies can only be avoided by not operating these vehicles over grade crossings until the driver has assured himself that the movement can be made safely."

A general order of the commission provides that in Pennsylvania bus operators must stop their buses at grade crossings and look carefully in both directions and after ascertaining that no locomotives, cars or trains are approaching proceed with the trip.

Many grade crossings passed over by school buses have been improved this year so that a clear view of the tracks is possible from the road.

Miners-Operators Ready To Smash Deadlock Today

Indications Point To Agreement In Hard Coal Industry Sometime Today

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 17.—The deadlock between coal operators and miners groups, meeting here to draw up a new agreement for the hard coal industry to replace the contract which ends September 1, may be broken today. Indications were that an agreement might be effected during the day.

The operators, who have been holding "secret sessions since Tuesday night, issued a call for a full committee meeting at 10:30 o'clock this morning. This meeting will be followed by a joint session with the miners at two o'clock this afternoon. The miners held a session yesterday with the miners' scale committee.

The chief issue is the operators' demand for adequate machinery for adjusting wages. In exchange for granting of this the operators were said to be ready to adopt a modified form of dues-check-off (collection of miners' union dues).

Calling of the meetings today was taken in some quarters to forecast a speedy agreement.

Search For Youth Accused Of Taking Valuable Jewelry

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17—City detectives today began a search for a 14 year old boy who is said to escaped with a black leather bag containing jewels valued at $7,550 from the buyer's office in the Gimble Department store yesterday afternoon.

The boy collided with the floorwalker in making his getaway with such a force he fell to the floor. The floorwalker believing the boy employed at the store did not question him, detectives said.

The bag, containing three bracelets and three rings, was left in the room by Miss Adella Brandwin, a buyer, according to police.

KEEP UP APPEARANCES

It is a good thing, perhaps, that through pride houses are kept neat and beautiful by the use of paint. We paint because our property looks shabby, or because other people in the neighborhood do—we do not want our building to cause odious comparisons. The prosperity and standing of an individual among friends and neighbors and business associates is often judged by this factor. The appearance of your house is as imoprtant as the appearance of your clothes and for the same reason. If your house looks shabby, you simply cannot afford not to paint.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Professional Mothers

By HAZEL COURTNEY

PAULINE wrinkled her nose a trifle as she rang Gertrude's bell. Anne, who stood at her elbow, made a faint moaning noise. It was Tuesday, bridge-club day. Pauline and Anne lived near each other and they usually went to the club together, for they had a strong bond in common aside from the fact that they were neighbors. They were the only two girls in the club who had no children. They sat for hours exchanging dark looks and listening impatiently while the young mothers discussed care and feeding, corn starch pap, orange juice, spinach, and the proper number of bananas to feed a growing child.

"Every time I go to the club I come home swearing I'll resign," said Pauline. "I get so tired of this profession-mother stuff that I could wring my hair out by my roots."

"Aside from being professional mothers, the girls are all right," said Anne. "But witness this oath, Pauline Neely: If I ever have a child I will not talk about it. Never! Never! Never!"

"Ditto!" echoed Pauline vehemently.

Then Gertrude came to the door with her collar fastened under one ear and her hair dishevelled.

"I was up all night with junior," she began, before they had a chance to open their mouths. "And I didn't put him out of my arms until 12 o'clock today. So just glance lightly over the dust and what not that may be laying around."

As she led the way to the guest room she imparted the news that they would have to play two tables dummy, for Mary and Ellen had backed out at the last minute. Mary's baby had had the whooping cough for a week and was worse, and Ellen's had started to whoop just as its mother was putting her hat on her head.

"Probably did it on purpose," said Pauline. Gertrude gave her a sad look.

"Oh, well, you girls who haven't children could never understand," she excused them.

Pauline and Anne played at the same table with Gertrude and Arline Bates

Pauline led and Anne and Arline followed suit. Gertrude's mind was obviously not on the game.

"I forgot to get elastic for the baby's panties," she said, absently considering her hand.

"My dear, do you use elastic in his little panties " asked Arline in a horrified voice. "Now, I never use anything but a loose band. Why, that tight elastic will hurt his little legs.

Gertrude whitened around the mouth with rage.

"I always use elastic, she insisted with heat. "Everyone who knows anything about children uses elastic."

She had the angry frustrated air of a woman who knows she is right, but who cannot prove it to her satisfaction, and so must get revenge in some other way.

Arline smiled. "Your play, dear," she murmured. "We've been waiting hours for you."

For several minutes there was no sound but the steady slip-slap of the cards on the black sateen bridge cover. Then Gertrude turned to Arline with a smile of cloying sweetness.

"What in the world are you trying to do to your hair, dear?" she asked. "The outer layer is so much lighter than the underneath. If you really intend to keep it touched up, go to Lavelle. He's marvelous. All the old women go to him."

The brick red flush that rose under Arline's skin cried touche. Pauline and Anne rose with relief when the fourth hand was over and they started for the next table.

"Isn't it awful?" Pauline asked Anne as they walked home together. "I've heard nothing but whooping cough and measles all afternoon. I feel as though I could whoop and break out with a rash myself, given the slightest provocation."

"Thank Heaven we still have a few interests that do not center around grade 1 milk and how to keep junior from gnawing the legs off the dining room table," said Anne scornfully.

"Amen!" answered Pauline, and they smiled at each other with complete understanding.

When Anne's baby came Pauline felt a little agrieved—as though Anne had put something over on her. After all they had said about women with babies, for Anne to up and have one! But of course Anne would be different. She would take the baby lightly, as it was meant to be taken, and not act as though the world rested on her shoulders. So Pauline rushed to see Anne as soon as possible.

As she gazed on the wriggling red thing that Anne exhibited so proudly, Pauline thought she had never seen a more unattractive child. Its head was shaped like a large cocoanut and its legs were crooked and red! Lord, wasn't it red!

"It's a darling!" she cried hoping Anne would not detect the hollow note in her voice.

But Anne did not detect it. The girl was positively fatuous.

"Isn't it a beauty?" she repeated again and again. "And so intelligent! He knows me already. And waves his hand at John. He even smiles when people speak to him. It's remarkable!"

"They have pains in their stomachs when they smile at that age," said Pauline, brutally.

"Im quite sure junior smiles because he knows just what he's smiling at," said Anne, with a cool, bright air. She had the exasperated look of a woman who knows she is right but who cannot prove it as strongly as she would like to do. Therefore it behooved her to get satisfaction in some other way.

"My dear," she cooed, "you've lost a lot of weight, haven't you? You show it in your face and neck."

Pauline knew she had lost Anne. But she didn't know how completely she had lost her until the next session of the bridge club. Anne usually a listener, had the center of the floor and no one could get a word in edgewise. Junior this and Junior that. Pauline smothered her boredom and wondered how a girl as interesting as Anne could become such a bore—almost overnight, you might say. When Anne cut her and walked home with Mary, going the long way around to get a dress pattern for Junior. Pauline resigned. She was through. They made her sick with their orange juice and open-mouth bottles and heaven knows what!

Pauline was dumbfounded when they brought her the twins. At first she could not believe they were hers. When she was quite convinced, she accused the nurse of holding a third one in reserve. Of course, they were red, but a deep, distinguished red, Pauline decided. And their heads were a most unusual shape. A cunning cocoanut shape. Adorable! And their legs were bandied, but any fool knew that a baby should have bandied legs. The more bandied the better. Their voices were loud and strong and they used them often, indicating good health.

The girls forgave her and sent flowers. When she could see them, they came and raved over the twins. If there were a few hollow notes in the ravings, Pauline did not notice them. For how could they gaze on anything so perfect as the twins and not rave? She was asked to join the club again and consented.

The first afternoon she attended she entertained the girls by telling them in detail how the twins played with one another's toes. Of course, it stopped the game for 20 minutes, but no one seemed to mind except one girl, a new member who had no children, and who kept swallowing yawns. When she moved to the second table, Pauline thought it was too bad for the girls there to miss out on the twins' toes, so she told the story again And so she progressed through the afternoon. She had a wonderful time and the girls seemed much more intelligent than they ever had been before.

As she was putting on her hat that afternoon she overheard the new member say something in a low voice. It sent the angry blood to her cheek.

"What a bore that Pauline Neeley is," she yawned. "Does she ever talk of anything but her children?"

Pauline told Anne about it on the way home and they both agreed that you couldn't expect a girl who had no children to show any sense.

"They simply can't understand how a mother feels," said Pauline, pityingly.

She—I just put my furs in cold storage.

He—Oh, is that what they call it now? My watch and studs are there, too!

"Frederick Says---"

By CLYDE WELDON

JANE, up in her room, put her hands over her ears to shut the voice of Frederick shouting at his wife downstairs.

He was still at it. Jumping down her throat because Olga had overbrowned the muffins. Or maybe, by this time, it was because Elsie had not yet ordered coal. Or perhaps because she wanted him to make a fourth at bridge that evening and bridge was a game he considered enjoyable to fools and morons only.

But even with her ears protected, her brother's complaining still reached her.

"You'd think, Elsie, after 15 years—"

When Elsie Bracken married Fred Furbish, Fred's sister Jane was the only person who didn't go around saying how well Elsie was doing for herself. And now that she had come back to Wakeville for a brief visit, in spite of the fact that she found him advanced in prestige among his fellow men, being president of the Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the Town committee and member of innumerable clubs, she soon discovered he was, within his own four walls, the same old Fred. He was fond enough of Elsie at heart, but a terrible bickerer and fault finder, loudly criticising every habit and opinion which did not coincide with his own.

Poor Elsie! Something should be done about it.

Jane sat down on the edge of the daybed, assuming much the same attitude she had been holding every night for two successful seasons when the curtain rose on "What a Woman Thinks."

If Fred could be made to see himself as his wife and sister saw him!

Just at present, he was unusually bad, being all worked up, according to Elsie, over the coming Service Club banquet for which he was chairman. Two speakers had already failed him and he was searching frantically for a third.

Suddenly, Jane threw back her head and laughed softly. A possible way to reform Fred had occurred to her. Not a sure way, of course, and one which involved her own loss of dignity, for it hurts one's pride to ask a favor of a man whose offer of marriage one has just refused.

She rose and went down to the dining-room where Elsie was wearing the fuschias.

"Fred, I think I can get you a speaker."

"Who?"

"Jey—er—Mansfield. He's—well, he's the mayor of Hilton!"

"Got any sort of voice?"

Jane smiled. "Yes," she said.

Fred frowned. "I'm so up against it. You tempted to take a chance on anybody. If he's a mayor—for the luva Mike, Elsie, are you trying to drown that plant?"

Later, Elsie and Jane discussed the entertainment of Mr. Mansfield.

"Let's see that he gets here the day before," urged Jane, "and have a few people in that night for bridge.'

Elsie hesitated. "You know how Fred is about bridge. He says only fools and morons—"

"Now, listen, Elsie," interrupted Jane firmly, "if Jay— if Mr. Mansfield comes. Fred has got for the time being, to swallow his little prejudices, even if they choke him."

Ten days later, Jay Mansfield was met at his train by a delegation of citizens who enveloped him in greetings and handshakes. Then he was turned over to the Furbishes, who drove him home to a hot bath and an excellent dinner, the main dish of which was a large platter of liver and bacon.

Olga, glimpsing the host's face as she brought the dish in, nearly dropped her burden, but the guest of honor, who had read twice through the 10-page letter from Jane, beamed pleasantly. "My favorite dish!" he exclaimed.

"Well, well!" said Jane innocently. "And Frederick says it's fit only for cats. He says no intelligent man—" But Elsie broke in with a hurried request for the salt.

Jane behaved well enough until after the dessert. Then, with the same guiless expression, she urged their guest to have a cigarette. I'm sure you won't mind, will you, Fred? You know," she went on, "Frederick says that to see a big man with a dinky little cigarette dangling from his lips fairly nauseates him."

There followed a game of bridge, and Jane so manipulated the tally cards that Jay Mansfield, Frederick and herself started at the same table.

The cards were made, cut, dealt. There was silence as the players arranged what had fallen to them.

Then, "I just adore bridge!" announced Jane. "Even if it's true, as Frederick says, that only morons and fools enjoy it!"

The incident was a keynote to all that followed. Fred got so that when he heard his sister's gentle voice beginning, "Frederick says—" he wanted to hurl his cards in her face and run from the room.

Next morning Jane drove the guest around the town. What they talked about is nobody's business, but when they returned each wore a look of content and happiness.

That evening, when the speaker of the occasion rose, everyone viewed him with approval. A fine, well-built man. And when he began to speak, the whole room hushed immediately. What a voice!

For an hour he held them spellbound with his wit and clever comment on men and things.

He ended. Then, with a funny little smile, he seemed about to add an afterthought. But what it was no one ever heard. He got as far as, "In spite of what my friend, Frederick, says—," when his friend, Frederick, leaped to his feet, holding up his glass. "A toast," he cried, "to our honored guest!"

Before Mansfield boarded his train he took Jane in his arms in the shadow of a pillar of the Wakeville station platform. "Tell me, darling, how you came to change your mind about marrying me."

"Oh," said Jane coolly, "after seeing other husbands, I thought I had better grab you before some other woman beat me to it!"

"By the way," asked Frederick curiously, when Jane came back from the station, "just where is the Hilton that fellow is Mayor of?"

Jane considered a moment. Then. "Oh, back East," she said vaguely.

How could she explain that Jay Jordan, as the leading man in "What a Woman Thinks," was known on the stage, was an acting Mayor only, and that Hilton consisted of just one back drop, four wings and a row of footlights?

Angler—(describing a catch)—The trout was so long—I tell you I never saw such a fish!

Rustic—No, I don't suppose ye ever did!

Brook—How can you tell that the diamond is the hardest mineral?

Bond—It will even make an impression on a woman.

The Spice of Life

By JOELLA JOHNSON

FOR the fourth time that morning the bell rang. Emma angrily jerked her hands out of the greasy, tepid dishwater, dried them quickly on the wet hand towel and started for the front door. She opened the door to find the mailman just leaving through the gate, and with a slightly mollified expression, jerked open the black, rust-covered mailbox and took out the three envelopes. She slowly closed the door behind her as she examined the mail.

The two inevitable advertisements she hastily crumpled into the bulging pocket of her bungalow apron, but the third letter, written on heavy white stationary which fairly screamed "Invitation" at her, she hastily tore open. Standing at the dining room window, she read with quickly beating heart a cordial little note from her old Strawberry Hill friend, Alicia Dean, who wanted her to be sure to come to a masquerade party at the Strawberry Hill Country Club on Friday night to meet the old crowd.

"Married life after five years must be getting on your nerves a little," wrote the young matron, "so I want you to come for an evening's pleasure without your husband. The change will do you good."

What a godsend the invitation was! It brought back memories of happy, luxurious playdays with the crowd on Strawberry Hill, that region of middle-class prosperity, in the days before her marriage to the good-looking young mechanic, John Helm. How the old crowd had talked at that whirlwind marriage, which they described as "beneath Emma." The rupture had started then, and except for a casual meeting on the street occasionally she rarely saw the crowd. Of course the two children kept her busy, and skimping along on a mechanic's salary left her no means or respite for social intercourse. And right from the blue sky, this invitation! Just when she was feeling most irritable and John's nerves seemed always on edge and the children were uncontrollable.

She jumped up as she smelt a burning odor. While rescuing the biscuits from calamity, she thought of a costume and was selfishly pleased that she had delayed buying shoes for Junior.

After lunch she dispatched the children to a neighbor's and did some economical shopping downtown. At dinner that night she snubbed John's sarcastic remarks about canned dinners and laziness, but slightly pricked up her ears when he casually mentioned meeting Bosworth Dean on the street.

"Did he say anything?" she asked rather breathlessly. After a momentary hesitation John answered with a muffled "nothing much," and buried himself in the evening paper.

Two days of excitement and hurried sewing on a black-and-white columbine dress; wrath from John because she had taken his black dress tie for a neckband. He didn't know it, though.

"Where is that blamed tie?" he yelled. "Never can find anything where I put it in this old house. Why don't you leave things alone?" And this on Friday night!

She stopped. "Why, John, where are you going?"

"Oh, I've gotta go to the Mechanics Union dinner." This rather evasively. For one brief moment her heart almost stopped. Suppose John was unfaithful! No, no, that couldn't be!

"Where is that tie?"

"But, John, dear," she said, substituting an old one. "I've been planning for days to go to the theater tonight with Bess, and, I thought you would stay home with the children. Why didn't you let me know before?"

"For heaven's sake, Em, quit nagging! It's a last minute affair. I was nominated for office, so I gotta go, that's all there is to it. If you want to go to the theater, go ahead. Get the Smith girl to stay in with the kids."

That smoothed it over. A moment later. "Hey, Em, a button's missing from my vest."

Dull anger and resentment again John burned in her, but she quickly tore a pearl button from her best dress and sewed it on wordlessly. After a seemingly endless interval she got him out of the house. It was the work of a few minutes to call the neighbor's girl, hurry into her costume, and leave last minute instructions.

The country club was ablaze with light and color when she got off the street car. Alicia greeted her cordially and introduced her to a gay partner. Everybody was in costume and wore nose masks. It was one continuous round of gayety. Then came the Paul Jones, and an interesting, impertinent black domino caught hold of her hand and would not let her go. Dance after dance he monopolized her. At the call, "Choose your partners for supper," he drew her hand masterfully through his arm.

"We'll eat in a quiet corner away from the rest," he said.

She laughed and nodded like one intoxicated.

What a heavenly supper! What a perfect lover the black domino made, and how tenderly she pinned the opening of his domino under the collar band where it was ripped. And then he took her into his arms and imprinted a deep, passionate, burning kiss on her lips.

"John, dear, naughty, naughty! You still have the art."

"Yes, Emma darling, it comes naturally." They laughed.

"How did you know, Emma,"

"I saw my pearl button. Besides, your hands have a funny trick of twitching. But how did you guess?"

"I recognized my missing dress tie, and that little mole on your neck.

"Theater, fibber!"

"Mechanics Union dinner, liar!"

"John, who invited you?"

"Bosworth Dean, confidentially, without the wife. And you?"

"Alicia, confidentially, without the husband. What a joke!"

"Em," bending closer to her, "what say to going home on a second honeymoon, huh?" He drew her closer and tenderly kissed her cheek.

"Let's, and, to make it real, let's go in a cab."

And in the moonlight they whirled home while the taxi-meter ticked away the milkman's money.

A Midsummer Day's Dream

By PARKE WHITNEY

MISS SHORT was pushing the lawnmower over a rather scraggly patch of lawn in her backyard when a man appeared at the corner of her house and beckoned to her. A little surprised, she left the lawnmower in the middle of a patch of green and approached him.

"We're going to move on the 15th, Miss Short. Your flat isn't quite large enough for us."

July! Not so bad as the Winter to have a house idle—That was fortunate!

But the place must be put in readiness for incoming tenants, whoever they might be. That night, Miss Short called up the various ones whose assistance would be needed to make the place desirable.

Mr. Bovell was to do the painting and papering, and he promised to appear in due time. The very next day Miss Short wended her rather slow way towards what had once been her home, and which, for quite some time, she had not visited, as she had let it to others who made it their home.

She was armed with the various paraphernalia necessary for preparing an empty house for occupancy, and was planning to do what she could to expedite matters in the way of renovating it.

She found enough to do. But, as she walked slowly around the old yard, familiar to her in a youth long since past, she noted not so much the things that must be done as those that had long since been done, and left their mark to note the passing of the years.

Here a pear tree, now towering to the housetop, once held stiff and firm by her young hands to enable a father, long since passed away, to pack loam and water around its young roots. Here, in this little corner, as far away from the house as possible, rested "Buster," the pretty little fat glutton of a cocker spaniel, who had liked nothing so much as to lie in the sun all day and have his meals on time—an aristocrat of dogdom!

About here had been the cistern from which they had pumped the rainwater; and here the cool well of spring water, long since dried up. What a time there had been when the street was piped for water!

The Dexter street car at the foot of the street, among the first electric cars to operate and carry passengers. What a time everybody had the first night they ran. The never-to-be-forgotten sight of the old-timers stepping timidly into the cars that ran without horses!

A telephone? Never! Couldn't you hear them telling that lightning followed a telephone wire right into the house? Lightning did the same thing to electric lights—it did, so it did!

A poet, not passed on, had lived in this little house—a real poet, whose works have been so recognized that they have placed in his honor a bronze tablet in the John Hay Library at Brown University, which was his alma mater, and which he attended while living in this little house by the side of the road.

"There are hermit souls that live withdrawn,
In the peace of their self content;
There are souls, like stars, that dwelt apart,
In a fellowless firmament;
There are pioneer souls that blaze their paths
Where the highways never ran;
But let me live in a house by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man."

The little house had reason to be proud of itself that it had sheltered one so gifted as Sam Walter Foss, who wrote those lines and who lived in it while laying the foundation of his poetic future.

Miss Short slowly traversed the long, old-fashioned hall he had often trod while declaiming aloud the swing of a verse or a college oration. Empty rooms, yet full of memories!

Mrs. Willer's canary upstairs was singing a throaty song that sweetly rose and fell as Mr. Willer talked to it. The hush of a July day surrounded the little place—evening approached; and the roses, heavy with dew, began to hang their heads. The day was done and it was time to leave.

Mrs. Willer came downstairs carrying a small glass jar wrapped in white paper

"Are you going pretty soon, Miss Short? Here's some real maple syrup—don't let it stand around till it gets warm. Put it on the ice as soon as you get home."

Mrs. Willer looked around the empty rooms, and maybe, if she spoke her thoughts she might say she saw little accomplished, but she spoke kindly and encouragingly to the woman who was sitting on the little green stool she had lent her, to rest between times during her stay in the empty house.

"Of course, there's a lot to be done, Miss Short, and you won't see much improvement at first, but by and by you'll have things looking as good as they can look."

Miss Short smiled. She was going to tell Mrs. Willer some time that one of the pleasantest days of a hot Summer was when she went down to her old home and lived over again the happy years she had spent in it.

How was Mrs. Willer to know that, many years ago, it had been the custom of Miss Short, when she lived in that same house, to go down into her cellar and, from its coolest corner, fetch a jar of real maple syrup to give a departing guest as a special treat, and that Mrs. Willer's hospitable gift was the last perfect touch of a Midsummer's day dream,

THE MASSACHUSETTS BAY COLONY WAS NOT FOUNDED WITH ANY IDEA OF RELIGIOUS TOLERATION BUT AS A STRONGHOLD OF PURITANISM. —•

HAVING SUFFERED PERSECUTION IN ENGLAND FOR THEIR BELIEFS, THE PURITANS BECAME INTOLERANT OF OTHER FAITHS. NON-PURITANS WERE PERMITTED TO LIVE IN THE COLONY SO LONG AS THEY OBEYED THE PURITAN LAWS, BUT THEY WERE ALLOWED NO VOICE IN THE GOVERNMENT AND HAD TO CONTRIBUTE TO THE SUPPORT OF THE PURITAN CHURCH.

SINCE ALL THOSE IN OFFICE WERE DEVOUT PURITANS, THE GOVERNMENT BECAME A RELIGIOUS DESPOTISM WHICH SOUGHT TO REGULATE THE LIVES OF ALL THE COLONISTS. —•

THERE WAS NO DEMOCRACY IN EARLY MASSACHUSETTS. GOVERNOR WINTHROP AND OTHER PURITAN LEADERS BELIEVED THAT THE DESTINIES OF THE COLONY SHOULD BE ENTRUSTED ENTIRELY TO A SMALL GROUP OF MEN, THE "ARISTOCRACY OF THE GODLY."

TO MAKE SURE THAT THE CONTROL OF THE COLONY WOULD NOT SLIP FROM THE HANDS OF THE PURITANS, NONE BUT MEMBERS OF THE PURITAN CHURCH WERE ALLOWED TO VOTE AND ALL OTHER CHURCHES WERE EXCLUDED. —•

AS TIME WENT ON, INCREASING NUMBERS OF NON-PURITANS CAME FROM ENGLAND TO SETTLE IN MASSACHUSETTS. THIS ELEMENT CHAFED UNDER THE STERN LAWS LAID DOWN BY THE PURITAN AUTHORITIES. —•

County Officials Should Be Prompt On Tax Reports

Auditor General C. A. Waters Intends To Enforce Fiscal Code

HARRISBURG, July 17.—Auditor General Charles A. Waters today declared that many county officers are derelict in their return of tax moneys collected for the commonwealth.

"Many of these officers are weeks behind time," he said, "and in one instance a county official has made no return for at least sixteen months. This particular official is now under investigation by both the auditor general and the Department of Revenue. Under the old law, officials must make payment of the month's collections within ten days after the first Monday of the succeeding month. Under the revised fiscal code payments must be made the first Monday of each month."

Audits of accounts of officials who collect taxes due the commonwealth are now made by attaches of the auditor general's department. Under the old act county treasurers' accounts, insofar as they applied to state collections, were made by the auditors elected by the people, in counties not having a controller. In counties possessing a controller accounts of all officials, so far as they concerned state collections, were audited by auditors named by the court to check the officers' books. In all counties the accounts of the register of wills, prothonotary, recorder of deeds and clerk of the orphans' court were audited by auditors named by the court of common pleas.

45 Auditors

Under the fiscal code as revised by the 1929 legislature, all these audits are now made by the auditor general, whose county bureau employs forty-five auditors. Accounts investigated in various offices are as follows:

County treasurer—mercantile license tax; fish, dog and hunters' licenses. Prothonotary—original writs, original entries of judgments, transcripts and appeals from dockets of aldermen and justices of the peace. Recorder of deeds—tax on deeds, mortgages and other instruments offered for record. Celrk of orphans' court—tax on marriage licenses. Register of wills—tax of letters testamentary, letters of administration, and on inheritance taxes. The state's share of the marriage license fee, incidentally, is 50 cents.

Under the old method audits began the first Monday of January in each year, and reports were made to the auditor general at the pleasure of the auditors—some being received as late as the following November. Delays naturally held up settlement of the state's accounts with the various officials.

Auditor General Waters said today that plans are now under way for an aduit of accounts of all alderman, magistrates and justices of the peace, insofar as they pertain to fines and fees collected for the commonwealth. These audits were made by the State Highway department for several years, but Mr. Waters plans to place the investigation in the hands of his county bureau, of which George W. Baker is chief.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. He prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and McKee's or Eckerd's invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.

The Chance of a Lifetime to get plus value in Tires

The majority of people who read this advertisement are going to need tires this season; the time to buy them is right now.

Crude rubber is cheap; as a result tire prices are the lowest in history.

You can actually buy at this time the world's best tires for no more money than you used to pay for inferior or unknown tires.

You can buy Goodyear Tires on an extreme low-cost-mileage basis, and that is exactly what smart buyers are doing.

The special advantages to be enjoyed from Goodyear Tires are due to definite Goodyear superiorities in both tread and carcass, the two main parts of a tire.

The Goodyear All-Weather Tread is superior in traction, and everybody wants sure-footedness underwheel.

The Goodyear Supertwist Carcass is superior in vitality and long life, and this means economy and freedom from trouble.

These superiorities are not imaginary; they are real.

Any Goodyear Dealer will be glad to demonstrate the facts.

And the facts unmistakably are: Goodyear Tires do give greater value.

That's why Goodyear sales are going ahead at a rate surpassing any previous record.

That's why impartial investigation shows a nation-wide preference two-and-a-half to thirty times as great for Goodyears as for any other tire.

That's why Goodyear builds annually millions more tires than any other manufacturer in the world.

That's why more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!

The dominance enjoyed by Goodyear Tires is not temporary or new—it has flourished for fifteen years strictly on a basis of superior quality.

Mandell-Singer Battle Tonight, Title At Stake

Sammy Mandell Called Upon To Defend Lightweight Crown Tonight

SINGER MAY FOOL YOUNG CHAMPION

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, July 17.—Sammy Mandell, who started life with the mien and grace of a ball room dancer and finished with the lightweight championship of the world, must dance as never before tonight or pay the piper's usurious toll.

He will meet Al Singer, brash with the confidence of the young, in a fifteen round fight for the championship and those sparkling feet must match, with guile, the speed and daring and vigor of the other or they will halt abruptly to dance no more The eye is quicker than the hand but Mandell is gambling tonight, as always, that the feet are quicker than both and it is not to be said that the records play him false. Yet, if the will of the majority is served, he will finish the evening bereft of the title that has been his for five years.

Mandell Favored.

There is always an air of breathless drama about a fight in which the champion is expected to expire. It gets down into the corpuscles and makes the blood race. It lends the thing a fictive glory. It fools you and makes you like it very much. So upward of $175,000 will come through the gates tonight to see the new champion crowned. I think it very possible that it will stay to see the old champion win.

The boys have managed to become highly unimpressed with Mandell as he comes forward to make this, his second actual defense of the title. They don't like his legs. They say his ten years in the ring number two too many. The weight, they add, is getting him and, finally, that he never was a great fighter. As to that, if anyone will show me a great fighter today, I'll guarantee to show him an alligator with sunburn.

Anyhow, they even have been prattling darkly about the fight itself, which only goes to show how even a great mind will spoil if it is left out in the sun too long.

Not Even Marked.

Mandell hasn't as much as a blemish to show for his ten years in action. He is not the man to be spattered all over the first three rows by some Humpty Dumpty from Council Bluffs and, though he has been hit by experts, he has seldom forsaken the perpendicular. He has done thirty five rounds, for example, against Jimmy McLarnin in the last two years without being seriously inconvenienced or abashed. McLarnin hit him of course. So did Tommy Grogan, Tony Ganzeneri and Billy Petrolle.

I think, in fact, that if there is any significance to be taken from this, it is that he is being hit with greater frequency as the years go on. However, if Mandell still was the man who defended the title here against McLarnin two years ago, there wouldn't be any fight. It is the fact that Mandell is presumed to have slipped that gives Singer his great chance tonight.

Singer Is Good.

Otherwise, it seems reasonable to expect that the champion, having made weight only twice in five years and being abstemious almost beyond reason, will come up to this fight with at least some of the speed and stamina that once were his. He also will summon the great trinity that will be his always—experience, smartness, bravery.

He can't be a bad bet, particularly as a short-money choice. Maybe he has lost a split-second of the speed in his head and eye and hand. Maybe the weight, 135 pounds at two o'clock, will take more out of him than he ever can put back. Maybe he is just a fighter who has held the title long enough.

If so, it will need all of these things to make Singer win. The latter is a good boxer and a fair puncher. He has made some good fights and some bad ones. His hands are fragile. He fights at his best against undersized men, of which Mandell is not one. He probably is a year away, meaning that his development still is to come.

But he has youth and maybe this will be enough. I, for one, am willing to be convinced.

Here And There In Sports' Land

Thirty one thousand fans witnessed the Cubs and Dodgers divide a doubleheader at Brooklyn yesterday. The first game was marked by disorder. It was the first time this season that pop bottles were thrown at Ebbets Field. Gabby Hartnett was the target. The crowd held him responsible when Bissonette, Dodger first baseman was knocked out at the plate in the first game, although players reported he had struck his head on the ground in sliding. An argument between Root and Luque after the Chicago hurler had dusted off the Cuban was squelched before fists flew. Manager Joe McCarthy, Coach Jack Burke and Coach Ivy Olsen were banned from the field for disputing decisions.

Hollyrood Harrod, bay gelding driven by Johnny Dodge of Lexington, took the twenty second annual renewal of the $10,000 Exchange club purse for 2:12 trotters yesterday at Kalamazoo. He got away to a bad start in the first head and finished tenth but struck his stride in the next two heats, winning the second in a fast brush on the stretch with Hal Watts and Bennett Volo and taking the deciding heat handily. Axmoko and Bennett Volo won second and third money. The victory paid Hollyrood Harrod's owner $5,000.

Age meets youth tonight when Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion and Al Singer, New York clash in a 15 round bout in New York city. Sammy is favored six to five to retain his crown. He likes the 15 round route and has always been impressive in the last part of all contests. He has slipped some but how far no one will be able to tell until he meets Singer, a young, strong, ambitious right hand puncher. The betting may change before they enter the ring.

Mickey Solomon will tackle Jack Wilson a third time tonight. The bout is scheduled for Millvale. In one of the two previous fights Solomon flattened Wilson. Joe Midway will also appear in Pittsburgh soon having been carded to fight Snowflakes Wright, a colored boy, in a preliminary at Braddock bowl. Monday night. Wright is a good middleweight. He gave Henry Firpo a terrific struggle. Wright had Firpo down and Firpo was fortunate to win the fight.

Elimination of Emmett Pare, Dayton, O., defending champion by Bryan Grantmjr., Atlanta, and a long three hour struggle between Wray Brown, St. Louis and Frank X. Shields, New York, were the features of the third round play of the National clay courts tennis tournament at Kansas City yesterday. The three hour match was staged prior to the match in which Emmett dropped the match to Grant.

Sammy Buchanan, is dead in a Dayton, Ky., hospital, the result of a boxing bout with Jimmy Neal, Cincinnati. Hospital attendants are uncertain of the cause of death.

Russel Callaway, Huntington, W. Va., and a West Virginia university athlete is injured having torn the cartilage in his knee according to Morgantown reports.

Herman Wierner, Baltimore, Dud, Eades, Pittsburgh and James Neal Cincinnati, have been suspended from boxing in Pennsylvania by the State Athletic commission.

Dodgers Play Before 30,000

Brooklyn Fans Jam Ball Park For Cubs Series—Dodgers Look Good

ALVIN CROWDER WINS HIS SIXTH

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, July 17.—All the world loves a lover and more so a winning ball club.

It used to be that the sum total of the admirers of the Brooklyn Robins could be herded together in the torch of the Statue of Liberty but yesterday 30,000 fans saw the league-leading flock play in Ebbets field and 15,000 were turned away. And tickets for today's clash with the Cubs are as plentiful as Scotsmen at a night club as in dividing a double header with the Bruins the flock guaranteed to continue a winner for at least the rest of the Cubs' series for even if Chicago wins all of the three remaining games they would fail by a couple of decimals or so to snatch the lead from the bob-bob-bobbin' Robs.

The battling Bruins flayed Ray Moss for a 6 to 4 win in the opener but Adolpho Luque repulsed the invaders 5 to 3 in the tea timer.

The A's retained their slim lead in the American league by turning back the White Sox 14 to 7 after they crawled all over Ted Lyons and scored seven runs in the second inning.

Crowder Wins Sixth.

Alvin Crowder won his sixth victory in eight starts for Washington, defeating Cleveland 10 to 4, but the Senators dropped the finale 13 to 6 when Milton Shoffner's pitching held them runless until the ninth.

Too much Red Lucas stopped the Giants cold and the Reds took it, 8 to 1.

That better-every-day Detroit club won again, lowering Boston 3 to 2 Whitehill pitching shutout ball until he Zeppelined near the end.

The Pirates ganged up on Sherdel and Brandt, Grantham and Comorosky getting homers, and defeated the Braves 9 to 5. Boston took the opener, 4 to 3, with Zachary puzzling the Buc hitters.

Lou Gehrig's 24th home run turned the trick for the Yankees, 2 to 1, over St. Louis.

Collins, out there for the Phillies, was calm and steady, while his teammates drove Rhem to the water in the fourth and Philadelphia triumphed over the Cardinals 10 to 5.

Post Office Team Is Overwhelmed

Scarazzos overwhelmed the Post Office 22 to 8 in a game on North Highland grounds. The coal dealers hammered out 25 hits while the mail men could get only 11. The Post Office started off good in the first session but were soon overtaken and left in the rear. The box score:

Spying On Sports

by BILL RITT

By WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sports Editor.

Business is booming on the Pacific coast and promises to become even better.

The super-salesmen of the Golden West, having polished off four big deals with the major leagues and deposited something in excess of a fifth of a million dollars in their banks, cheerfully predict that this is, indeed, a banner baseball year.

To date the Pacific coast sales sheet shows this:

The New York Yanks busted the seams of their bankroll and passed over $75,000 to the San Francisco Seals for the services of Meryl Hoag.

The San Francisco Missions are $50,000 richer in New York Giants gold for turning Harry Rosenberg over to John McGraw.

The Boston Braves now own Buster Chatham and the Portland Beavers now posesss an extra $40,000 in their kick.

The San Francisco Missions no longer own Ike Boone, now a Brooklyn Robin, but in his place the Missions have another $40,000.

That's $205,000 on the office adding machine. Not a bad balance for the first half of the season. But there'll be more players boarding east-bound trains and much more gold winging its way west before the current campaign closes.

The Seals have $100,000 worth of ivory in Frank Crosetti, shortstop, or at least so they contend. Anyway, that's the price being given to inquisitive big league magnates.

The Sacramento Senators are quoted as asking $50,000 for Tony (Lefty) Freitas, third baseman.

The Oakland Oaks have two costly numbers on the block. They are Johnny Vergez, center fielder, tagged for $75,000, and Buzz Arlett, utility and pinch hitter, for a mere $15,000. Arlett's price was much higher before he was injured in a clash with an umpire.

What price Carl Dittmar of the Los Angeles Angels is not known at this time, but if any big league clubs show extra interest in him it will be plenty. The Cubs have already looked him over, Carl being virtually a Cub now through the townership of the Angels by the Chicago management.

It is a pretty safe estimate that the coast will be enriched by nearly $350,000 for players sent up this year. In addition to this, the Portland club is announced for sale.

From a coast league standpoint a season isn't a failure if the turnstiles grow rusty, at least, not as long as those fancy prices and fat big league bankrolls last.

Last night in the Mercantile League the Firemen ascended to the top of the heap in the circuit by taking both ends of a double bill from the Wampum and Phalanx teams. The scores were 3 to 2 in each instance. The Firemen played very good ball to take both victories. The Firemen have yet to taste defeat in the second-half of the league.

The Mercantile League seems to be wobbling right now. The Richman team is not showing up for the games and they may be dropped from the league if they persist in not showing up. Also teams must arrange to get those first-half games played off as soon as possible.

Tonight the Industrial League teams go back to the wars with the following games on tap—Shenango Tin vs Radiator Works at Radiator Field; Lehigh Cement vs Engineering Works at Tin Mill Field; Lockley Machines vs Penn-Ohio Electrics at Lehigh Field; Chevies vs Bell Telephones at Washington Field.

They're cutting our athletic games to junior sizes. Ping pong was the first flivver sport. But no sooner did abbreviated tennis become popular when they handed us baby golf.

Baby golf is no longer a fad. It's a disease and an epidemic threatens.

* * *

The reason it is so popular is because the game enables you to find out for 25 cents you are not Bobby Jones. And never will be.

* * *

Baby golf courses of 18 holes and an assortment of sewer pipe, cement curb stones and unfairways.

Par is always two strokes under your score.

The courses are usually laid out on busy street corners where everybody can laugh at your mistakes.

Baby golf is serving a purpose. It is revealing that many of our most dignified citizens with the use of a putter and a ball can make first-class clowns of themselves.

Oppose Eliminating Of Grade Crossings

State Highway Plan For Eliminating Butler-Pittsburgh Road Crossings Opposed

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Plans of the State Highway Department for the elimination of three grade crossings on the old Butler plank road—one at Wittmer, one at Mt. Royal and the third between Wittmer and Glenshaw—were opposed here today at a hearing before Public Service Commissioner C. A. Young.

The Ball Chemical Company of Glenshaw, protesting against the proposed plans, offered a substitute which it said would save $40,000. The company's chief objection to the state's plans has to do with the proposal to widen the present road 10 feet near the company's plant. This, it was contended, would compel the company to relocate its railroad siding so close to its establishment that fire hazards from shipments of inflammable material would be increased.

Encroachment on the property of the Glenshaw Glass Company and the condemnation of two private dwellings were features of the chemical company's counter proposal.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad which is to pay half the cost of the improvement, the State Highway Department and Allegheny county have agreed on highway department's plan. The relocation of about two miles of highway is proposed.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Narrow Price Range In Market Activity

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 17.—A continuation of spectacular run-ups in a select list of favorites failed to exert any effect upon the market structure as a whole today, and the main body of stocks fluctuated irregularly within a comparatively narrow price range.

Auburn again took the lime-light, bounding up to 141, for a further advance of almost 10 points, completing an upturn of some 46 points from its low point of last week. Vanadium also reached new high ground on the recovery, at its forenoon mark of 99⅝, up almost 3 points from its previous close.

Standard Industrial leaders were unable to attract much of a following, and U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Radio, and General Electric, sagged moderately lower after first hour, buoyancy.

Motors contiued firm and utilities and oils were check-mated in efforts to extend their advances into higher territory.

Rails ruled irregular with coppers soft.

Commodity markets ruled steady. Call money was in ample supply at the renewal rate of 2 per cent.

Division Betters Accident Record

Notable Drop In Reportable Accidents For First Six Months Of Year

TRAIN SERVICE MEN MAKE BEST RECORD

A notable decrease in the number of reportable accidents was made by the Erie and Ashtabula division, Pennsylvania lines, during the first six months of 1930, Safety Agent L. C Gleason announced today. Figures have just been compiled for the period.

Records for the first half of 1929 show that 43 reportable cases occurred, while only 13 such cases happened this year, setting a percentage of 4 1 casualties per million man hours curing this period.

A total of 204 accidents, reportable and non-reportable cases, were recorded last year while this year's figures show only 186, or a decrease of 18.

Only accidents disabling employes for over three days are classed as reportable cases, a record of which must be sent in regularly to the interstate commerce commission.

Outstanding in the accomplishment of the local division was the train service department which reduced its accidents from 14 to 2, an 85 per cent decrease. The maintenance of way department was second best, reducing its casualties 70 per cent.

Safety Agent Gleason declared today that the Pennsylvania system stands in ninth place in safety along with other railroads of the country. The Union Pacific occupies first place.

Vote On Naval Treaty Nearing; May Be Ratified

Acceptance Of Reservation Against Secret Agreements Hits Opposition

OTHER RESERVATION IDEAS SUGGESTED

Administration Is Opposed To All Except First Reservation Offered

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Three reservations, proposing to outlaw secret agreements between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, pledging their joint guarantee of "freedom of the seas" and forcing Great Britain to abandon her naval bases near the American coast, were pending in the senate today as obstacles to ratification of the London Naval Treaty.

The administration has signified it will accept the first reservation, basing American ratification on the understanding that no secret agreements exist between the contracting powers, but will oppose the other conditions. The little band of treaty foes has announced it will wage a determined fight to force acceptance of all reservations before allowing the treaty to come to a final vote.

The prospects for early ratification were brightened by the success of the administration in maintaining a quorum. More than 60 senators have attended each session this week, with the treaty's proponents having nearly a quorum of 49 senators present. Against this strength, the treaty foes appeared to be fighting a losing battle.

May Vote Next Week

Administration leaders predicted a final vote would be reached by Wednesday of next week.

Thus, far, the fight against the treaty has developed chiefly on Senators Johnson (R) of Cal., and McKellar (D) of Tenn., with a half dozen others aiding them. Unless the opposition can whip up greater strength in the next few days, their fight will have to take on the character of a filibuster or a vote will be reached.

Action of the administration in accepting the first reservation, proposed by Senator Norris (R) of Neb., decimated the ranks of the opposition. A dozen senators were ready to fight ratification in the belief that President Hoover's refusal to give the senate the administration's secret correspondence on the treaty, meant that some secret agreement existed, possibly between the United States and Great Britain. Acceptance of the reservation would destroy any such agreement, so this phase of the opposition's was pacified.

The other reservations, sponsored by Senator McKellar, will meet administration opposition, because neither is acceptable to Great Britain. At the start of the London conference, the British indignantly rejected an American proposal that "freedom of the seas" be included in the conference agenda. Owing to British opposition, this subject was abandoned. Consequently, the administration cannot write the guarantee into the treaty at this late date and expect British acquiescence.

Should Abandon Bases

The last reservation, calling on the British to remove their naval bases from the Atlantic and Pacific coast lines of America, will be opposed by the administration for obvious reasons. The British were never even asked to take this step, either at the Washington or the London conferences, and without a doubt, would abandon the treaty rather than agree to it now. Under the circumstances, the administration must oppose the reservation in order to prevent defeat of the treaty in the British Parliament.

The reservation however will provoke considerable debate. In the preamble, McKellar declared that war between the United States and Great Britain was "unthinkable" and that the two nations were the best of friends. He added that Canada and America had an unprotected border over 3,000 miles long and added that forts or naval bases along a nation's coastline could only be a menace or threat to any nation. Therefore, "in the interest of peace and concord between the two nations," he added, the British bases should be abandoned.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

One way of killing a pleasant July evening is a canoe and a stream and a guitar and any other additions you can think of. Driving out over the hills is another, and the list could go on. One of the ways that offers less in the way of entertainment is an evening with the school board, and last night was theirs.

Just like December means the election of officers and April means the tax rate, the July meeting means the purchase of coal and they bought something like 4800 tons last night, not a bad jag of coal. After looking over the prices offered for the year's coal supply, one is forced to the conclusion that the dealer isn't going to buy any yachts with the profits made.

The coal industry in Western Pennsylvania has suffered such in the past six years through the rimming this state has received from the Inter-State Commerce Commission and the United States Senate. You can ship a ton of coal from Kentucky nearly twice as far for the same freight rate as you can from Pennsylvania. All of which is some reason why Pennsylvania coal operators are in bad shape financially, and a lot of mines are down.

However the first thought of the colyum today was the school board. While some of the rest of you were out at summer cottages, or were in the park, the school board members were sitting around a long table, transacting your school business for you.

Saturday afternon will be a gala day at the Y. M. C. A. camp at Eastbrook. The new pool is to be dedicated, and you're all invited, according to Mrs. John Elliott, who is the president of the Y. W. Board. The new pool is the last word in swimming apparatus and if you come out you can swim free. At least that was what I took out of the blanket invitation she issued.

When Henry Golder gets through with that Grant Street job you'll imagine you're in some other city. Those trees which came out nearly to the cartway have been taken out, and from Jefferson street to the bridge will be a straight shot of concrete.

Heroism Of Canines In Pennsylvania Is Cited By Committee

Five State Dogs Are Eligible To Receive Gold Medals As Hero Awards

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Among the scores of dogs whose acts of heroism and devotion during the past six months have made them eligible for a national gold metal are five Pennsylvania dogs who have distingushed themselves wth unusual honors, according to an announcement from Spratt's dog hero award committee in New York.

One of the outstanding cases of faithfulness and devotion was reported to the committee from this city where "Fly", a shepherd dog, shares life imprisonment with his master. The dog is now entering its seventh year in Eastern Penitentiary where the master, Martin Fleming, is under life sentence.

From Marietta comes the story of "Nina", a police dog—pet of the Harry Hershey family. When "Nina" discovered "bess", a highly prized cow, strangling to death in a hayrack, she loosened the cross bar on the stable door, jumped over the four-foot lower section and door and raced to the house for help. Her timely act saved the cow's life.

Seven persons at Bradford owe a debt to their pet dog who saved Arthur Milks and his family of six their home by arousing them when fire started in the house where they slept.

"Seeing Eye", a German shepherd or "police dog" is a familiar sight to residents of Butler. He watches over his blind master, Rev R. A. Blair with human vigilance. The dog nolds back his master until traffic clears for them to cross intersections, sees that strangers keep their distance and performs other services for his master who can not see.

The committee still seeks further information regarding the dog who saved his master from death or injury in the disastrous explosion at Devon which destroyed a fireworks plant with large loss of life. The dog is reported to have been in the habit of going with his master and waiting for him in the family automobile while he worked. The day of the explosition the dog seemed uneasy and his continual howling forced his master to leave work on two occasions. The second visit to the dog was responsible for the owner's absence from the building when the terrific blast let go.

The committee, which awards the gold media twice a year, reports that courage and faithfulness is not confined to full blooded, pedigreed dog, but that those qualities are conspicuous in the mongrels, too, who lay no proud boasts of their ancestry.
